School Told to Invest

Asked to Use 'Idle Money' to Make $850 Profit; Action Withheld

The Monessen School Board last night took under consideration a suggestion that it invest about $100,000 in United States Treasury bills or certificates for a 90-day period, thereby enabling the School District to profit nearly $850 on "what otherwise would be 'idle' money."

The suggestion was made by Dr. Joseph Pallone, superintendent, on the advice of Charles A. Muetzel, of Hosack, Specht, Muetzel & Wood, a Pittsburgh accounting and auditing firm employed by the School District.

Dr. Pallone told the board that the District has about "$100,000 in tax money and state appropriations on hand at present which is for use around Feb. 15. The money will be idle in the bank until that time because most of our bills are paid until then."

He said Muetzel said it would be advisable to invest the "idle money" in U. S. certificates or bills of indebtedness "and get interest profits instead of letting the money just stay in the bank without collecting any interest."

Can Use Money

Pallone said the auditor informed him that "many School Districts abide by this practice."

The superintendent said if the $100,000 was invested now for a 90-day period, the interest rate would be "around 3 41 per cent, meaning the School District would have about $850 it wouldn't have ordinarily. We certainly could use this extra money for improvements and other things," Dr. Pallone said.

He said both the auditing firm and Mellon Bank officials here suggested the investment and told him it is not a speculation in the stock market. He said this is "strictly a U. S. government investment — and we all know the government will stand behind anything it sells."

Director Nicholas Cullen said he would like to "know more before investing $100,000 in School District money." He asked that the matter be tabled until more information is available.

Dr. Pallone answered by saying "I have been guaranteed by the auditor and have talked it over with Fred Stockus (Mellon Bank official and School District treasurer). Both have suggested we put the money to work. Otherwise, I certainly wouldn't suggest it."

Director Dr. Joseph Dudas also said he thought it was a "good suggestion. I certainly don't see any harm in it. U.S. Government money is always good; we have EYE WAGE-PRICE SPIRAL—These three auto manufacturer presidents and the president of the United Auto Workers have been invited to appear Nov. 25 at a hearing in Washington on the industry's wage-price spiral. "Host" will be Senator Estes Kefauver (D), Tennessee. He heads the Senate anti-trust subcommittee. Kefauver said prices for 1958 models are "considerably in excess" of amounts directly attributable to last summer's steel price boost.

Bank Cashier Takes Things in Own Hands

LOST CREEK, W. Va. (UP) — David H. Nutter swore it wouldn't happen again if he could help it after two young bandits held up the small bank here where he is assistant cashier and escaped with more than $15,000 in 1955.

When the situation presented itself again Tuesday, Nutter took things into his own hands and within five minutes captured singlehandedly a shotgun-wielding robber who was trying to flee with $3,253 in bank loot.

To be charged today with armed robbery was Winston Coleman Starkey, 29, of Baltimore St., Clarksburg.

State and county police who investigated said they believed a second person may have been in on the original plot but became excited and drove off, leaving Starkey to try and escape on foot. Starkey refused, however, to name any possible accomplice.

Hidden Alarm

Nutter said Starkey, who entered the Harrison County Bank wearing dark glasses and a hat with a sawed-off shotgun fastened to his belt, forced him at gunpoint to empty money from two cash drawers into a paper bag, but in the process Nutter pressed a hidden burglar alarm.

Nutter said the man grabbed the bag and ran as the alarm clanged loudly. Nutter said he got a pistol from a desk in the bank and gave chase. A postman told him the fugitive had run up a side street.

The assistant cashier threaded toward the other end of the street and said he was waiting when Starkey appeared. Nutter said he fired one shot into the ground and the surprised robber threw down his gun and the bag containing the money, dodged behind a tree and shouted "Don't shoot, you can have it." Nutter then marched Starkey back to the bank where his abortive attempt at crime started

PRR Refutes Six Charges of Unclean Sidings

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad produced its own pictures at a Public Utility Commission hearing Tuesday to refute charges of hazardous and unclean conditions at six locations in Western Pennsylvania.

The photos were the company's answer to a number of pictures produced by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen at a hearing last Sept. 3.

Comparing the two sets of pictures, Louis Freeman, a civil engineer for the railroad, said he failed to see the same things depicted in both sets as evidence.

The railroad has denied some of the charges of unsafe conditions and has contended other faults have been corrected. It placed the blame for debris and litter along some rail sidings on companies served by the tracks.

The brotherhood charged unsafe and unclean conditions at the Rosston Bridge over Crooked Creek, Armstrong County; sidings at the Powell Coal Co. and McNees Brick Co in Kittanning, Armstrong County; siding tracks at the Elper Pottery Co., in Ford City, Armstrong County; a siding track at the Allegheny Sand and Loam Co., at Donley, Armstrong County; the Kiski Junction Yard, and the Phillipston Yard, Clarion County.

Adlai to Help with New NATO

WASHINGTON (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson will be invited to Washington late this month to consult with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, and possibly President Eisenhower, on plans to modernize the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, an informed source said today.

The President will meet with congressional leaders of both parties Dec. 3 to discuss the American approach at the mid-December NATO "summit" meeting in Paris.

Prior to the sessions here, officials said, Stevenson, titular head of the Democratic Party, will be given an opportunity to comment on preliminary administration plans, verbally and in writing. Officials hope he will come to Washington for these consultations.

His presence would strengthen the bipartisan front which the administration hopes to present to Congress and the world when it unveils some controversial features of the plan for greater sharing of weapons and secrets with the NATO allies.

Stevenson accepted the consultative role Tuesday. He made it clear, however, that he would not take responsibility for the final administration program if it does not reflect his views.

'First Impressions'

He said he already has given Dulles a memorandum on his "first impressions" of the problems involved.

Neither former President Truman nor his secretary of state, Dean Acheson, has been asked by the administration for their ideas of how to meet "Russia's military and scientific challenge."

Truman said Tuesday he didn't think he would be approached.

Then he fired a new blast at his successor. He charged that rocket-missile development program he started in 1950 was "broken up after I left the White House."

He referred to the program set up in the Pentagon under K. T. Keller, former head of the Chrysler Corp., who quit on Sept. 18, 1953—nine months after the Eisenhower administration took office. Three months before resigning, Keller publicly suggested that his Office of Director of Guided Missiles be abolished "in view of the present advanced state of guided missile development."

Truman's remark renewed the blame-fixing exchanges which have given political overtones to the nation's reappraisal of its defenses since Russia launched Sputnik I.

Attempts to restore bipartisan unity on defense and foreign policy will face another test when Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) opens his preparedness subcommittee hearings on missiles and satellites Nov. 25.

Army Space-missile Experts Rush to Capital for Parleys

WASHINGTON (UP) — Two top Army space-missile experts have been summoned here for urgent conferences Thursday on the launching of an American-made satellite.

At the same time, the United States is pounding home that at key locations all over the world it has nuclear weapons ready on instant notice to deliver a massive counterblow should Russia launch a surprise attack with ballistic missiles.

The two developments put the nation farther out in seizing the propaganda offensive from Russia as President Eisenhower prepared tonight to deliver a second "chins up" science and security speech at Oklahoma City, Okla.

Called to map plans with the Pentagon and the National Academy of Science on the satellite effort were German-born rocket scientist Dr. Wernher Von Braun and Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, commander of the Army's Huntsville, Ala., ballistic missile center.

Reason Not Given

There was no indication whether their presence would mean a speed-up in the placing of a fully-instrumented satellite up with the Soviet Sputniks. That is scheduled under the Navy's non-military "Vanguard" project for next spring. Launchings of six-inch test satellites are set for next month.

Vanguard officials, who had to design their own propulsion equipment, said the United States could have beaten Russia in the satellite race if they had an Army Jupiter-C rocket from the start of the International Geophysical Year project in 1955.

Mendaris and Von Braun were expected to work out with officials here the size, shape and weight of the satellite they will hurl into space with their powerful Jupiter-C, a test rocket which has been used in atmosphere re-entry experiments.

Since last week, when the President acknowledged the Soviets were ahead in some areas of missile development, the United States has been trying to offset the threat by reassuring the world of its power to devastate Russia if the Kremlin launches an attack.

In Paris Tuesday U.S. Air Force Gen. Thomas S. Power indicated America has planes in the air around the clock armed with hydrogen bombs. Although he did not specify what their bomb load

Arnold School Board Blasts Medical Group

The Westmoreland County Medical Assn. came in for some sharp criticism by the Arnold School Board this week.

The Directors were peeved over the Assn.'s stand against mass inoculations.

Early last month, the Board of Education instructed the school physician to inoculate teachers at the board's expense. However the Assn. policy prevented the program from being carried out.

One director, Nick Pallone, suggested that the school physician be relieved of his duties to embarrass the Assn. Another director, John Hollick, asked that the Board seek a ruling from the state medical board.

"There is a clique of three or four doctors running the show," said Hollick. "I know a lot of doctors who don't agree with the stand against mass inoculations."

After some bristling comment, the Board finally decided to take no formal action in the matter.

Next War Will Cost Trillions, Navy Man Says

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The next world war, should it come, will cost the United States about four trillion dollars, a Navy captain predicted Tuesday.

Capt. Irvin S. Moore, attached to the Industrial College of the Air Force, told the National Resources Conference here "there has been a factor of about ten per cent in the cost of wars."

"The War between the States," he said, "cost about $3,900,000,000. World War I cost about $36,900,000,000. World War II cost about 383 billion dollars."

The next war would cost about 4 trillion dollars, he said.

"In a war for survival," he pointed out, "the national debt becomes secondary."

Traffic Changes Start Tomorrow

Because of the current Schoonmaker Ave. improvement program, the following traffic regulations will be in effect tomorrow:

There will be no traffic on Schoonmaker Ave. from 12th to near Sixth Sts.

There will be two-way traffic on Donner Ave. from Sixth to 12th Sts.

No parking will be permitted on Donner from 11th to 12th Sts. and only one-side parking (railroad side) on Donner from Sixth to 12th Sts.

Chased Auto Slams Another; Three Killed

MAHANOY CITY, Pa. (UP) — Three persons were killed Tuesday night when a speeding automobile pursued by state police crashed head-on with a second car on a mountain highway one mile south of here.

James Bainbridge, 65, of Park Crest, Barnesville R-D, the driver chased by police, and Louis L. Eltringham, 58, of Fracville, driver of the second car, were killed instantly.

Mrs. Miriam Neifert, 42, of 311 E. Broad St., Tamaqua, a passenger in the Bainbridge car, died today in the Locust Mountain Hospital at Shenandoah.

State Police Cpl. James McGrew of the Frackville detail said the Bainbridge car was seen speeding along a newly paved legislative highway by Troopers William Simmonds and George Fisher.

The troopers turned their car and gave chase, radioing to other cars that the auto was speeding along the left side of the highway.

The Bainbridge car crashed against Eltringham's auto one-half mile from the intersection of Route 45.

An ambulance from Frackville answered another radio call from the troopers.

Eltringham, who was on his way home when killed, was a road inspector for the state highway department.

To Speak On Future 'Security'

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower flew to Oklahoma City today to deliver the second of his series of "chins-up" speeches on U.S. military and scientific might. The address will be carried on radio and television tonight.

The President was scheduled to arrive in Oklahoma City at 5 p.m. e.s.t. and spend about four hours in the Skirvin Towers Hotel before going to the Municipal Auditorium for his speech.

The address, to be made at 10:30 p.m. e.s.t., will be on "future security."

Eisenhower spent the morning in his White House office conferring with staff aides and working on his talk.

He is expected to emphasize to the nation tonight the importance of maintaining a strong foreign aid program for friendly nations and of making a substantial improvement in U.S. scientific education to keep pace with Russia's technological advances.

Outlines Program

In the first of his talks last week, the President conceded that Russia may be ahead of the United States in some phases of missile development. But he said the United States and the free world are still militarily superior to the Soviet Union.

He also outlined a five-point "program of action," climaxed by the appointment of Dr. James R. Killian, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, as a scientific czar, to meet the Russian challenge.

In advance of tonight's speech, Rep. H. R. Gross (R-Iowa) urged Eisenhower to deal with "rough facts" and speak with "more conviction." He said the public should be told about the "inter-service rivalry over the production of missiles."

Eisenhower, keeping up the strenuous official pace he has followed since the Soviet Union set Sputniks zooming into space, won't pause in Oklahoma City for a night's rest but will board his plane about midnight for a sleeper jump back to Washington.

Meets With NSC Thursday

Thursday he will preside over the second National Security Council meeting of the week at the White House and attend in the afternoon a meeting of defense industry executives organized as a civilian reserve force.

On riday morning the President will meet with his cabinet and then, unless some new crisis interferes, fly later in the day to Augusta, Ga., for a long weekend of golf.

Eisenhower met in late October with a large group of top-flight scientists during the early American jitters over the Soviet Sput-

Water Main Is Broken Here On Schoonmaker

An eight-inch water main was broken yesterday afternoon during construction work on Schoonmaker Ave., Monessen, sending a fountain of water almost 20 feet into the air.

Water company crews from the Authority of the Borough of Charleroi worked on the break for more than four hours before completing necessary repairs.

About seven homes in the 12th St. section of Schoonmaker Ave., were without water from about 3:30 to 9 p.m. yesterday, according to a water company spokesman.

The big water line was snapped by a heavy shovel belonging to the Frank Donatelli Construction Co. Donnatelli is repaving Schoonmaker Ave. under a state Highway Department contract.

MCKEESPORT, Pa. (UP) — John Kowochek, 69, McKeesport, was brutally beaten and robbed of his wallet early today by three youths.

Field Inquiry into Annexation Opened

The state Council of Education today opened its long-awaited field investigation into the annexation dispute between the Monessen and Rostraver school districts.

Investigators consulted this morning with both Monessen and Rostraver school officials. They did not indicate how long the investigation will take.

Involved in the controversy is a 199 acre tract of land annexed by Monessen in 1955, but which remained under the jurisdiction of the Rostraver School Board for educational purposes.

At the time of the annexation, the state Council on Education — which must authorize school district revisions — refused to separate the area from the Rostraver Twp. school district.

A group of citizens in the area, at their own expense, petitioned the Council on several occasions to reverse the earlier decision and place them in the Monessen school district.

The latest hearing on the dispute took place in Harrisburg on June 19, at which time both sides presented arguments. The Council decided then to withold action but agreed to a field investigation in the case.

Somehow the directive ordering the investigation got lost, according to a spokesman for the Council. It wasn't until Sept. 18 that the oversight was noted. At that time, the Council reordered the investigation and set Jan. 1 as the deadline for rendering a decision in the case.

Approximately 75 pupils will be involved if the exchange is granted. Rostraver has opposed the switch on grounds that it would create a financial hardship.

Coal Mines in Operation Again

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (UP)—Sixteen coal mines in three Western Pennsylvania counties idled by a one-week shutdown resulting from a seniority dispute, were back in operation today.

Two Greene County operations—the Mather mine at Mather and the Nemacolin mine of the Buckeye Coal Co.—resumed schedules at midnight Tuesday.

Workers at the Crucible mine of Crucible Steel Co. remained out, but were scheduled to meet Thursday to discuss a possible settlement of their seniority dispute in the furloughing of 83 workers.

Roving bands of pickets halted work at 16 pits in Greene, Fayette and Washington counties, idling 1,000 miners, as a result of the dispute.

Council in 'Stop-gap' Building Legislation

Monessen City Council today heard the first reading of an ordinance which would "temporarily" prohibit the construction of new buildings if their specifications did not conform with the master plan now being drafted by the Planning Commission.

City Solicitor Frank P. Ezerski described the ordinance as "stop-gap" legislation to prevent hurried construction not in conformity with the proposed building ordinance.

The "temporary" legislation will be in effect for a period of 120 days following enactment. It will become null and void if the proposed building ordinance is not approved.

The ordinance introduced today prohibits the issuance of building permits for any construction not in accordance with the zoning and building proposals already made public by the Planning Commission.

In this manner, the city plans to prevent new construction which would be illegal once, and if, the proposed zoning ordinance is adopted.

Council had a full agenda of items before it today and was still in session at noon.

The Board of Directors of the Monessen Civic Library Association formally requested an appropriation of $4,500 for next year. This represents an increase of $500 over last year.

Council agreed to take the request under advisement.

It was also learned that Council will meet this afternoon with officials of the state Highway Department to discuss progress on the Schoonmaker Ave. project, which has blocked off traffic entering the city from the west.

Charleroi Man Is Treated for Cuts

Joseph Williams McCay, 20, of 305 Lincoln Ave., Charleroi, was treated and released from Charleroi-Monessen Hospital early today for face and knee cuts sustained in an auto accident.

McCay told Charleroi police he swerved his car to avoid hitting a cat and rammed into a parked car owned by R. G. Nahas, 1119 Lincoln Ave. Charleroi.

Police said the accident occurred between 11th and 12th Sts. on McKean Ave.

Horan Quits as Police Officer; Is Plant Guard

Monessen Police Lt. James Horan formally submitted his resignation to City Council today in order to accept a position as plant guard at the Monongahela Division of Combustion-Engineering Inc.

Horan has been on 30-day leave of absence. He asked that his resignation be effective as of Nov. 1.

Council accepted the resignation with "regret" and described Horan as "one of the city's finest police officers."

Horan joined the force on May 1, 1935. He was elevated to lieutenant on Feb. 1, 1953.

He is married and the father of two children, James Jr and Penny.

Council took no action on naming a successor.

Donora Youth Hurt In Auto Accident

Peter Frank DiGrino, 18, of 506 Walnut St., Donora, was reported in good condition at Charleroi-Monessen Hospital today where he is being treated for scalp cuts as a result of an auto accident.

DiGrino was admitted to the hospital last night at 11 o'clock following a mishap on St. Mary's Rd. near Belle Vernon. No other accident details were available.

Long Range Plans for City Revealed

Report on Changes Is Made

Some intriguing possibilities for the Monessen of 1960, 1985, or 2072 are revealed in the long range plan released recently by the City Planning Commission.

The proposals for the future are contained in Part 2 of the comprehensive community plan which has been two years in the making. Part 1, an existing conditions report, was released earlier this year. A third and final report, containing recommendations for accomplishing the plan, is to be published early in 1958.

The long range plans are contained in a bound mimeograph volume of 41 pages along with maps and tables supplementing the text. Copies available to the public have been placed in the City Clerk's office, the Civic Library and the High School library, and the Chamber of Commerce office. Individual copies have been provided members of City Council and the several commissions and authorities involved in future city development.

Council authorized preparation of the city plan to put some order and reason into the future growth and development of the community. Instead of acting on impulse and allowing Monessen to grow haphazardly, Council hopes henceforth to be following a definite blueprint.

The plan is to be reviewed annually with immediate objectives lined up for a five-year period ahead. Thus the planning and financing of major improvements can be anticipated rather than thrust upon the taxpayers as emergencies.

The plan covers many phases of community life such as schools, parks, streets and highways, industry and retail business, homes, public buildings and services. It is Council's hope that the plan will be used continually not only by local government and public agencies but by all private interests who plan expansion or any change in their use of property in and around the city.

Changes Downtown

Dramatic rearrangement of the downtown area is one of the principal proposals in the plan. It is suggested that Donner Ave. be widened and relocated adjacent to the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad tracks; that all buildings be eliminated from the south side of Schoonmaker Ave.; that provision be made for vastly expanded parking areas, both public and private, in the business district.

A civic center is suggested in the Third St. area with the existing City Building as a nucleus. New police and fire stations would be added in the future. Usable commercial space downtown would be increased approximately one-third, and all residences would be eliminated from the business district under the plan.

According to the plan, the topography of Monessen creates three major residential neighborhoods. One is roughly west of Seneca St., one east of Seneca and north of Grand Boulevard, the third is roughly south of Grand Boulevard.

Charts accompanying the plan detail the population and acreage for each neighborhood and how much space should be allocated in each for schools, parks, play areas, and shopping facilities. Suggestions are given on the planning map for appropriate locations for each of these facilities.

Localized shopping centers, serving the three residential areas, would be restricted as to size and type of stores. Parking and signs would be controlled, and landscaping would be required. The plan anticipates eventual withdrawal of business establishments from purely residential areas.

School Proposals

A major section of the plan is devoted to the Monessen public school district. It is suggested that six existing elementary schools be eliminated over a period of years in favor of three modern school and playground installations, one serving each of the three residential neighborhoods.

A table of school enrollment projected to 1963 indicates that the existing Junior-Senior High School will likely be taxed beyond its capacity within five years. The plan proposes a new high school in what is now City Park, this to become a junior high school in later years when a new senior high school might be constructed in approximately the Shepler Hill area of Rostraver Twp.

This latter development supposes a Monessen of approximately 37,000 population. The population now is about 18,000.

Park Development

The growing inadequacy of City Park as a major community park is recognized. The plan suggests a new major park of not less than 50 acres be established in the future east of the present city line at Tyrol Boulevard.

Smaller neighborhood parks are provided in the plan for the residential areas. In addition it is proposed that steep slope areas be gradually withdrawn from residential or other uses and devoted to recreation or landscaping.

Street System

A system of streets and highways is proposed to integrate the city's thoroughfares with the state and township roads in the district and to provide local streets of the size and construction suited to the particular need.

Local main streets would have a 60-foot right-of-way, except downtown where 75 feet would be the rule. Parking would be permitted on main feeder streets but not on the heavy traffic arteries. Local residential streets would have a 40-foot right-of-way, and through traffic would be discouraged.

Bus Routes

The street arrangement proposed is coordinated with a new system of bus routes. The object would be to make public transportation attractive to more people and thus relieve a certain amount of traffic congestion which results from an outpouring of private cars.

The criteria for these improvements under the plan are (1) service within one-fourth of a mile of all homes in the residential neighborhoods, (2) direct service from residential areas to each neighborhood center, the downtown business district, major public facilities and the major employment centers, (3) faster service through the use of the improved major streets system, and (4) frequent service — at least every 20 minutes.

Whereas present bus routes cover 8.7 miles, involve duplicated service within the quarter-mile limit at some points and no service at others, the proposed system would eliminate duplication and involve 8.2 miles. A complete loop of the system could be made in approximately 48 minutes. Six buses, three in each direction, could provide service within the desired 20-minute intervals.

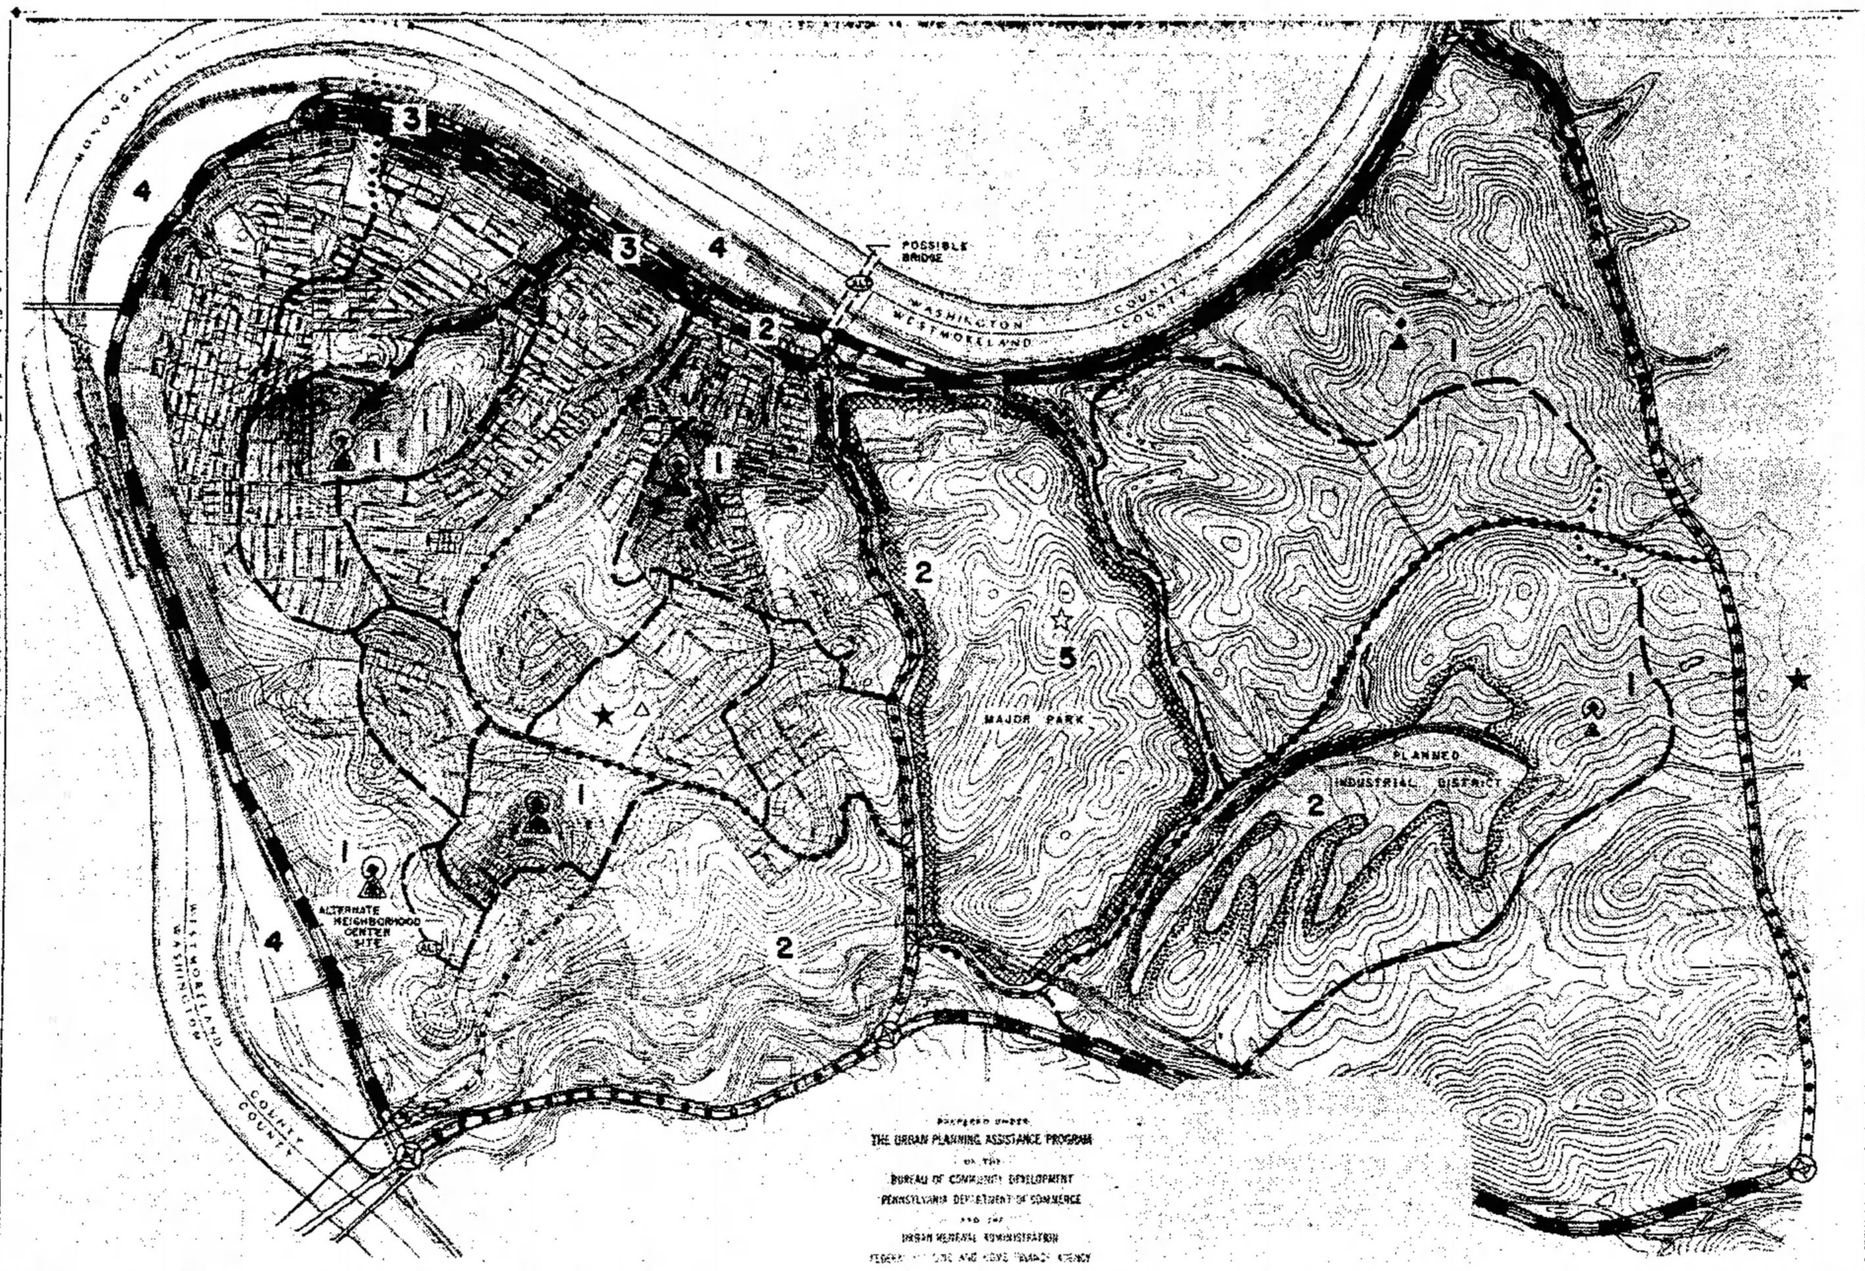
While many of the changes suggested in the plan involve very long range periods of time, Council has already started to implement the proposals with necessary legislation and to lay the foundation for getting to work on the plans.

Housing Ordinance

Last month Council enacted a housing ordinance, the first step in improving property maintenance and eventually eliminating slum dwellings in the community. Other legislation now in preparation includes a building code, a zoning ordinance and subdivision regulations.

In addition Council this year activated a Redevelopment Authority which is now at work on the planning of a multi-million dollar project involving 27 acres at the eastern end of Monessen.

While the administration fully expects that coming years will bring changes in the plans, flexibility is being provided to accommodate revisions and alterations required in the future. It is the feeling, however, that the current planning effort is producing a solid foundation on which the Monessen of later years can be made a more attractive, pleasant, convenient place to live and that efficiency and economy in local government will result.



PLANNED CITY — Locations of some principal community facilities in the future Monessen are shown in the map above reproduced from the comprehensive plan being prepared for the City by the Planning Commission. Shaded areas show (1) neighborhood centers where elementary schools, churches, small parks and service stores would be located; (2) sites for light industry, research centers or offices; (3) central business district; and (4) heavy industrial and railroad areas. A solid star indicates location of a new junior high school in what is now City Park. The open star is a new senior high school and new community park (5) in the Shepler Hill area of Rostraver Township. Heavy lines, broken and solid, indicate new and existing main thoroughfares. The plan covers a portion of Rostraver Township since the planning area by law extends three miles beyond present city limits.

Route 51 Site for Candy Co.

Several lots fronting on Route 51 near Star Junction were purchased yesterday by a Charleroi candy-manufacturing concern for future factory expansion.

The firm, Gene and Boots Candy, will occupy an existing building on the purchased lot and will soon centralize its manufacturing activities there, according to an announcement by Frank Gradler, executive vice-president of the Fayette County Development Council.

Gradler said the candy concern purchased the property, including the building, from Joseph Novak, Star Junction, who previously operated a restaurant at the site. The structure has been vacant for some time.

Gene and Boots, it was reported, will create a drive-in retail candy outlet in the building once it is cleaned and refurnished with new equipment.

The site is just south of Star Junction on a tract of land bordered by the old and new Rts. 51. Total frontage of the acquired lots amounts to 1,225 feet, Gradler said.

The announced change in location for the firm is not expected to result in any startling boost in district factory employment, Gradler added.

However, the Charleroi manufacturers reportedly are viewing expansion of their present facilities at the new site, with a proposed increased retail volume. Such a project may result in future employment for between 40 to 80 persons, it was said.

Kiwanis Members Hear Reports on State Convention

Kiwanis Club members heard reports on the state convention held in Pittsburgh when they met last night for a dinner session in the Slovak Home. President-elect Stephen Spontak and Lt. Governor W.R.H. Patterson spoke on the convention session.

Charles Penwick, president, reported on the gum machine project, and T. W. Read, chairman of the light bulb sale, reported on this project. The sale is continuing with considerable success. Last night's session was an early one at 5:30, and then the men continued with the bulb sale.

Gilfert Mihalich, local attorney, was welcomed as a new member.

Ed Stern was appointed as chairman for the annual family Christmas party to be held on Dec. 10.

Capt. John Conners offered the invocation. The next meeting was set for Nov. 26.

Downtown Parking Plazas Losing Money

Monessen's two downtown parking plazas have been operating at a loss during the first 11 months, it was announced last night at a meeting of the Monessen Parking Authority.

Total deficiency for the 11-month period, which started Nov. 1, 1956 and ended Sept. 30, 1957, was $3,791.27.

This was attested in the first official report compiled by the Authority's accountant, M.A. Milinovich. The report was accepted formally by the Authority.

Actual collections for the period totaled $8,662.38 while operating expenses totaled $1,628.65. Rental fees on the lease totaled $10,825, leaving a loss for the period of $3,791.27.

The report was passed without comment, but at previous meetings of the Authority, members have expressed confidence that plazas will be operating on a pay-as-you-go basis long before the expected two-year period which was originally set as the trial period.

$1,800 Needed Monthly

Approximately $1,800 monthly is needed to cover bond payments, which total $21,650 yearly, payable in two installments.

Under a lease-back arrangement under which the plazas are operating, the Authority works as a manager for the City with the City's finances standing behind all bond payments.

This means that when the $1,800 monthly income is not reached, the balance of the money comes out of City funds.

Authority members have stated they are not worried over the deficiencies as yet, since experience has shown in other cities that it takes about two years to put the parking plazas on a sustaining basis.

Total liabilities on the two plazas amount to $349,023.42, Milinovich stated in his report.

Of this amount, $340,000 is in parking revenue bonds; $450 in accounts payable and $1,110.73 in accrued interest. An earned surplus of $7,462.69 make up the balance.

Listed among the Authority's assets are $291,110.32 for the plazas themselves; $31,279.12 in trustee's fund accounts; $4,508.33 in current assets and $22,125.65 in deferred debits.

Stephen Sterbak, Authority treasurer, reported that revenue from the plazas totaled $1,157.55 during October. Of this amoung $980.10 was in cash and 3,549 tokens at five cents each brought in the balance of $177.45.

$14,628.75 Reported for Community Fund Drive

A total of $14,628.75 has been contributed to date to the 1957 Monessen Community Fund, it was revealed at a report meeting in Johnson's Restaurant last night.

Fund Chairman Michael Skirpan Jr. pointed out that the figure was far below the goal of $29,975.

Of the money contributed, most of it has come from the management and workers at the Monessen plant of the Pittsburgh Steel Co.

According to the industry committee of the Community Fund, Pittsburgh Steel has contributed $6500. The labor committee reported that workers at the plant have already chipped in with $4100.

Other committees reported this progress: commercial $3,058.75; professional $121; organizational $500; and schools $350.

Skirpan said another report meeting will be held next Tuesday.

'Long Way to Go'

"We still have a long way to go," said Skirpan. "I think it is important that contributors be reminded they are giving to 14 different charitable agencies when they make gifts to the Community Fund."

Skirpan suggested that a contributor first consider what he would give to one agency, then multiply that by 14 to arrive at his Community Fund gift.

As an added incentive, the Community Fund plans to publish the names of those who contributed more than $5 in a series of advertisements beginning with tomorrow's issue of The Daily Independent.

Persons who may not be contacted by Fund workers are asked to make their contribution directly to the Monessen office of the Mellon Bank, the First Federal Savings and Loan Assn. or at Fund headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce office.

Skirpan praised his committee for their fine work to date and predicted that the goal will be met if "all our citizens realize the importance of the Community Fund."

County Alumni Of Penn State To Hold Rally

The annual pre-Pitt game rally of the Penn State Alumni Club of Westmoreland County will be held Thursday evening, Nov. 21 at 8 o'clock at the William Penn Club in Greensburg.

The club's activities committee headed by Frank Baird '36, Jeannette, has invited Ross Lehman, assistant executive secretary of the Alumni Association, and "Dutch" Ricker, assistant director of athletics at Penn State University, to be present as guest speakers.

A movie of the Penn State-West Virginia football game this season, which State won 27-6, also will be shown.

Encouraging more support of the club's activities, Baird and his committeemen especially urge county Penn State alumnae and wives to attend the meeting with their husbands.

Other committeemen are Newell Connor '21, Thomas Wible '38, Dan Winslow '15, Thomas Brown '23, Woodrow Mullin '29, James Noble '48, William Rathgeb '37, Frank Chipak '45, Harry Good '22 and William Batten '47.

Seven Jurors Chosen To Hear Kittle Case

Seven jurors were selected yesterday in Washington County Court to hear the murder case against Orville Kittle of California.

Kittle is charged with the slaying of his nephew, George Wayne Lasko of Cleveland, O., last Aug. 10. The shooting occurred on Route 88 in California borough after Kittle had allegedly taken a police officer's gun.

Selections of the jurors started yesterday morning before visiting Judge J. Ingram Hook of Greene County. Of the 20 called, seven were seated at the day's end.

The Commonwealth, represented by First Assistant District Attorney P. V. Marino and Assistant Austin J. Murphy Jr., indicated early that it would seek first degree murder but not the death penalty. This indication came in the questions asked prospective jurors as Marino queried them about their scruples about finding a verdict in which life imprisonment is the penalty.

Kittle is represented by Attorneys Sanford Finder and Frank C. Carroll, both court-appointed.

Judge Hook will sit on cases for three weeks, filling in for ailing President Judge Roy I. Carson who will not hear cases during the November term of court.

The seven jurors selected so far in the order they were accepted are: Imogene Thorney, Monongahela; Mary B. Dobbin, Canonsburg; Patricia Johnson, Houston; George Ealy, West Alexander; Helen Natali, Fredericktown; Charles H. Baker, Washington R. D. 5, and Edward McGraw, Washington.

Each side is permitted to challenge 20 jurors without giving any particular reason and each side is allowed an unlimited number of challenges for cause in which the court must agree.

At the rate jurors were selected yesterday, impaneling of a full jury will require most or all of today.

His statement followed the record flight of a new jet KC-135 tanker plane from Westover Air Force Base, Mass., to Buenos Aires, Argentina, non-stop and no refueling.

Complementing the KC-135's flight was the non-stop flight of three B-66 jet bombers 8,100 miles. The three bombers were refueled on their dash from California to the Philippines Tuesday in 17 hours.

nothing to lose and about $850 to gain."

Cullen said he "did not disagree with the suggestion entirely, I just want to have more information. I'm sure it would be a sound investment."

The board, with President John Lancas and Secretary John Kossar also present, decided to withhold any action pending advice from Solicitor Dan Myshin and additional information from Stockus.

A special meeting probably will be called, it was indicated.

In conclusion, Dr. Pallone pointed out that we must have "any money we invest back by February because we'll have bills galore to pay at that time."

In other business, the board hired one teacher and accepted the resignation of another. Sylvia Ann Bellora, who is to graduate from California State Teachers College in January, will be hired at that time as an elementary teacher at the annual starting salary of $3,400.

The resignation of Joseph D. Petaccia, High School vocal instructor, was accepted. The board also acknowledged the application of James C. Butler to teach English, social studies and speech in the High School.

Mrs. Elva Marr, Monessen, applied for a position of cafteria worker.

The annual reorganization of the School Board will be held Monday, Dec. 2. The regular December meeting will be held at the same time.

The board approved a request from Allison-Lescanac Post 1190, Veterans of Foreign Wars, asking for the assistance of students in collecting toilet articles for hospitalized veterans. The VFW requested the articles be brought to the schools by Nov. 26.

Band Concert

The board granted a request by the Monessen-Belle Vernon Civic Music Association to rent the High School auditorium for concerts on Nov. 21, Jan. 29, Feb. 23 and Apr. 19.

The Shamrock Club of Southwestern Pennsylvania was granted the use of the auditorium on April 6 to present the University of Notre Dame concert band.

Present at the first part of last night's two-part meeting were members of the High School Student Council: Michael Mavias, president; George Bougioukas, secretary, and members Judy Todaro, Jerry Manetti and John McNavage, Mrs. Ray John, class sponsor, introduced the group.

The board met for routine business the first part of the evening and then adjourned. Later it decided to rescind the adjournment motion to discuss the investment matter.

nik. He reported later he was "astonished" to find their chief concern was not the relative scientific position of this country now but "where are we going to be in ten years?"

He said federal aid should be provided if necessary to meet "The absolute necessity" of increasing the scientific output of American schools.

Sen. John W. Bricker (R-Ohio) echoed today the President's concern about future scientists. Steelworkers Here Told to Show More Interest in State Politics

Members of United Steelworkers Local 1229, Monessen, were urged last night to show an increased interest in "political action to preserve the gains of the working man."

The advice came from several speakers, including former state Secretary of Labor John R. Torquato, during a regular meeting of the union in the CIO Building.

The political "pep talk" was the first in a series planned by the union. According to president Anthony Ortolona, other "prominent speakers" will be featured at future meetings.

Torquato, Democratic party chairman in Cambria County, defended the labor record of the present administration even though he conceded that "unemployment is on the rise."

He pointed out that the "Democratic administration succeeded in raising unemployment benefits in 1955 over the opposition of the Republicans."

Torquato also reminded that "it was a Democratic administration 20 years ago which first enacted the unemployment law." The former state cabinet member said it was a "parodox" that the law should be opposed by anyone since he described it as a "buffer between purchasing power and none at all."

Torquato had some words of praise for state Sen. John Dent and state Assemblymen H. J. Maxwell and Charles Mills.

"As long as you have men of that caliber in the state legislature you needn't worry about the so-called 'right-to-work' laws," he said.

According to Torquato, many pro labor bills have been introduced recently in the state legislature but "they have been killed in Republican-controlled committees."

Torquato said he followed the principle that "good government must do for people what they can not do for themselves."

Eugene Maurice, USW District 13 representative, asked the union members to forget "past differences" and unite in the interest of political action.

"Already 18 states have 'right-to-work' laws," he said. "If two-thirds of our states get them, it will become the law of the land."

Maurice said these laws are "really designed to destroy unions by outlawing the dues check-off system."

"The American Steel industry experienced its greatest prosperity between 1917 and 1929, yet the wages of the steelworker increased only six cents during that period," said Maurice. "Is it any wonder we must unite to protect our union?"

Ortolona also called on Westmoreland County Coroner Stephen Yoney and City Councilman John Kotch Jr. for remarks. Yoney thanked the union for its support in the recent election and promised to "investigate fully all accidental deaths to protect you and your families."

Kotch, who served as chairman of the Democratic campaign in Monessen, also thanked the union for its support.

In his remarks, Ortolona didn't forget the "good Republicans who crossed over in both the primary and general elections to vote for candidates who had not forgotten the working man."

About 150 union members sat in on the meeting.

Nation Recovering Emotional Balance

THE NATION seems quickly to be recovering its equilibrium after being thrown momentarily off balance, at least emotionally, by the Sputniks.

The American people are prone to these emotional swings. They can go coasting steadily and confidently through such a dangerous crisis as the Suez affair last winter, certain of their ability to meet whatever tests might come.

But other circumstances, with considerably less danger involved, will set them to discounting the competence of their government, the abilities of their scientists and even the worth of their whole educational system.

Fortunately, however, reason seems to return. And now we find ourselves taking stock and discovering that America is not about to disappear from the earth because Russian science has achieved a success in one phase of an endless inquiry by man into the secrets of the universe.

* * *

HERBERT Hoover, speaking from the wisdom of a long and purposeful life, performed an excellent service in a little talk which he made in New York City the other evening. The former President reminded his hearers of some things many forgot momentarily in the emotional wake of the Sputniks.

"We can well respect the accomplishments of the Russian technicians," said Mr. Hoover. "But we need not forget that they got the telegraph, the telephone, the electric lamp, the speaking sound track, the radio broadcast tube, the airplane, the atom and nuclear bombs from us. They secured the guided missile from the defeated Germans. They got their method of metal treatment and their radar from us and the British. They got their plastics, their antibiotics, their anti-viruses, their pain killers either from us or from the Germans, the British and the French."

This hardly suggests, said Mr. Hoover, that the west is about to go out of the business of scientific discovery.

He urges our people to shun the "worm's eye view" that "we are entering the decline and fall of the greatest nation in history."

Instead, he urges the "bird's eye view" which shows "the increasing skills, growing productivity, and the expansion of education and understanding, with improving health and growing strength of our nation."

* * *

THIS, we think, is sound advice. Sure, we have had a timely warning or at least a needed demonstration that the Soviet Union is making great technical progress. And it would be foolish of us to ignore the warning or discount the demonstration.

But if we will assess our national strength and resolve that it shall increase, we cannot despair.

Stevenson's Role

AFTER some confusion yesterday, it appears that Adlai Stevenson will play a consulting role in preparing a program for next month's NATO meeting in Paris. But there is nothing permanent about the arrangement, and in our opinion it is just as well.

There is nothing wrong, of course, in the President consulting whomever he thinks can help him on any foreign policy decision. We cannot imagine any American refusing to give the President his counsel if it is sought, and Mr. Stevenson has not refused.

But there is nothing in the international situation that calls for anything smacking of a bi-partisan coalition. We are not at war and war is not imminent so far as any responsible person thinks. And we see no cause for the political opposition to be called into any formal or continuous consultations beyond the normal exchanges between the President and the Democratic leaders of Congress.

Mr. Stevenson is the titular head of the Democratic party. And short of an acute emergency, we feel he should maintain an independent vantage point, from which to speak freely on all questions of public policy.

The country is looking to the Eisenhower administration for leadership. And bi-partisan window-dressing is not leadership. The country is looking to Mr. Stevenson and other articulate Democrats for loyal opposition, which includes intelligent criticism when necessary and patriotic support when justified.

Merry-Go-Round—

U. S. Satellites Collect Dust In Warehouse

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — There were some interesting backstage factors behind the Defense Department's decision to launch one of the six Army satellites which have been gathering dust in a Huntsville, Ala., warehouse for about six months.

Mr. Pearson

Factor No. 1 was new Defense Secretary Neil McElroy who is faster, more venturesome than good old Charlie Wilson. McElroy is also on the spot and wants to get off. He made the decision to let the Army fire, despite the earlier decision in favor of the Navy.

Factor No. 2 was this column of Oct. 25, revealing for the first time that "the Army has six satellites in a warehouse in Huntsville, Ala., all ready to launch. They could have been launched before the Sputnik, thus keeping the U.S.A. ahead of the USSR and preventing one of the greatest psychological defeats the United States ever suffered."

Factor No. 3 was Dr. Wernher von Braun, the Army missile expert, formerly operating for Hitler, now an American citizen, who has been conferring quietly with Navy Expert John P. Hagen, in charge of satellite "Project Vanguard." Their quiet cooperation led to Navy acquiescence in giving the Army first crack at catching up with Russia.

Budget Bureau Veto

One point readers have questioned me about is a paragraph in the Oct. 25 column which read:

"About three months ago, the Budget Bureau, which operates directly under the White House, actually sent auditors to Huntsville to make sure the Army did not spend a nickel on the satellite program."

This sounds incredible. It's not surprising some readers wonder how this could have happened. The answer is that the Budget Bureau learned that the Army had these satellites and figured it was trying to pull a "stunt" in order to prove it had the best missile team in the armed services.

Probably the Budget Bureau's suspicions were justified, because this was just around the time of the Col. Nickerson court-martial. Nickerson had written a secret memo, a copy of which reached this writer's hands, claiming that the Army was ahead of the Air Force in missile production and that Secretary of Defense Wilson was in serious error in stopping further Army work on an IRBM, or intermediate range ballistic missile.

Unquestionably the Army would have gone ahead and fired its earth satellite, thus beating Russia, in order to defend Col. Nickerson and prove the efficiency of Army missile experts. However, when the Budger Bureau, learning of this, sent auditors to Huntsville, they gave flat orders that not a nickel was to be spent on launching a satellite. It would have taken several thousand dollars to transport the satellite to Cape Canaveral, Fla., and launch it. Furthermore, an order is an order, especially when it comes from an arm of the White House.

So the Army missiles remained in their Alabama warehouse while Sputnik beat us into outer space.

White House Ghost-writers

President Eisenhower's solemn but confident television speech the other night gave no hint of the frantic search his special writers conducted for some rocket-missile achievement which would make this speech more reassuring.

Harried aides scurried between the Pentagon and the White House with secret papers describing what the three services are doing in the missile field. These were dumped on the desk of propaganda specialist Arthur Larson, architect of "modern Republicanism," recently pulled into the White House from the U. S. Information Agency.

Inside the Pentagon, assistant defense secretary Murray Snyder, formerly No. 2 man for White House public relations, directed the search. He called in representatives of the Army, Navy, and Air Force and ordered them to produce "scientific accomplishments" for the President's speech.

"We must have something definite and significant," Snyder urged.

The three services submitted papers that told about achievements already publicized. Snyder showed most interest in the Air Force's "Operation Farside," which shot a research rocket into outer space, and tried to goad the Air Force into exaggerating its achievements.

Though the Air force lost contact with the missile after 2800 miles, Snyder wanted the Air Force to claim the rocket had shot beyond 4,000 miles. Air Force spokesmen explained the rocket may have passed the 4,000-mile mark and may still be travelling in outer space, but warned that the President would discredit himself with scientists if he boasted that the rocket went beyond the proven altitude of 2800 miles. Snyder disregarded this advice

Why Does India Distrust Ike?

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Is it anything less than shockingly fantastic that in a great democratic nation seeking to secure its own freedom and whose government stands against Communism at home, its public opinion puts far greater trust in Red China's premier, Chou En Lai, in Egypt's anti-Western Tito, as men of peace and goodwill than in President Eisenhower?

Mr. Drummond

This seems almost incredible.

I refer to the attitude of the people of India as disclosed in a heretofore unpublicized opinion survey which gives first, second and third place to the two Communist figures and to the pro-Moscow Nasser, as leaders to esteem, and a low fourth to Mr. Eisenhower.

This poll has been unpublicized, perhaps, because its findings are delicate news in India and unpleasant news in the United States.

Why cover them up? Isn't it better to face the facts than to timidly tuck them under the rug of secrecy?

Distrust Eisenhower

This correspondent has been able to obtain a copy of the poll from private sources. It was undertaken by the Indian Institute of Public Opinion whose professional standards are comparable to those of Elmo Wilson, George Gallup and other American polling specialists. I cannot escape the opinion that the facts ought to come out — primarily in the interest of doing something about them. The central findings reveal:

That by majorities ranging from more than 2-to-1 to nearly 3-to-1 the people of India who have an opinion at all regard Chou En Lai, Nasser and Tito more highly than Dwight Eisenhower.

That among those who had an opinion Indians by a majority of 12-to-1 distrust President Eisenhower over the other three.

The question was: "How do you feel toward these world statesman?" The results were as follows:

	Very Good	Good	Fair	Bad	Very Bad	Don't Know
Chou En Lai	15.3	25.2	6.0	0.6	0.5	52.4
Nasser	11.2	25.3	6.7	0.6	0.2	56.0
Tito	5.2	16.9	9.7	0.6	0.0	67.6
Eisenhower	5.3	9.6	13.7	8.4	3.7	59.3

To get the most meaningful conclusion from these findings it is informative to add together the responses which were "very good" and "good" and the responses which were "bad" and "very bad." On this basis you find the following:

That the favorable opinion of the Indian people toward Chou En Lai adds up to 40.5, Nasser to 37.7, Tito to 32.1 and Eisenhower to 14.-9.

That the unfavorable opinion of the Indian people toward Eisenhower adds up to 12.1, to Chou En Lai to 1.1, Nasser to 0.8, and Tito to 0.6.

Ike Ahead Elsewhere

To assess this state of Indian public opinion, derogatory of President Eisenhower, it is useful to look at the returns of The New York Herald Tribune-Elmo Wilson poll which found that in 12 of 13 other foreign countries, including Austria, Sweden, France, Germany, Italy, Britain, President Eisenhower is most trusted as "the leader doing most to keep the peace" by majorities ranging from 2-to-1 to 16-to-1. Mr. Eisenhower fell behind only in Japan where Premier Nehru led.

Why do people in India trust Communitsts Chou En Lai and Tito far more than they do President Eisenhower?

Why? What has brought this widespread trust of those whom Indian officials here mostly fear and widespread distrust of those whom they know there is no reason to fear.

Nehru 'Neutral'

My own judgment would be that this popular Indian trust of foreign Communist leaders is the direct result of Premier Nehru's efforts to encourage his people to take a benign attitude of neutrality between the United States on the one hand and the Soviet Union and Red China on the other.

There are shrewd observers to say that Mr. Nehru can take this attitude of a plague on both your houses, a plague on your struggle, because he knows that he can trust America and knows he can't trust the Communists.

Can Mr. Nehru look with comfort upon an Indian public opinion which has been persuaded, perhaps unintentionally by its own premier, that it should distrust America and trust the Communists?

Is not this a perilous price for neutralism? If it is, Mr. Nehru may want to give it a second look when the facts come to his notice.

Behind The News—

Nasser Worried About Dependence on Soviet

By CHARLES M. McCANN

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt appears to be making a serious attempt to lessen his country's economic dependence on Soviet Russia.

To do this, Nasser seeks to restore normal trade and financial relations with the United States, Great Britain and France.

Mr. McCann

He has just asked Eugene Black, president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, to act as mediator in negotiations under which Egypt would pay compensation for the seizure of the Suez Canal. Black said Monday he had accepted.

Egyptian delegations also are negotiating with Great Britain, in Rome, and France, in Geneva, to restore normal economic and financial relations with those countries.

It has been reported off and on for several months that Nasser is somewhat anxious over Egypt's increasing dependence on Russia.

Red Trade Tripled

Egypt's trade with Russia and other countries of the Communist bloc now totals about 50 per cent of its total foreign trade. Three years ago the total was but 14 per cent.

It is too early to tell whether the various negotiations will succeed. Everything depends on whether Nasser really wants to reach a fair settlement with the western countries. He has shown no such desire in the past.

The situation is somewhat puzzling because of Nasser's activities as an Arab leader.

Egyptian radios and newspapers have started a vicious campaign against King Hussein of Jordan, who last April threw out his country's leftist government and broke up a plot to overthrow him.

The Egyptian government denies responsibility for the attacks. But there is no doubt that unless the government approved them they would not be made.

Seized Canal in 1956

When Nasser seized the canal in July, 1956, he said he was willing to pay stockholders compensation on the basis of Suez Canal stock quotations on the Paris Exchange at that time. The canal company rejected this offer. It said that the quotations had been forced down previously by uncertainty over Egypt's policies.

The separate negotiations Egypt is conducting with Britain and France concern compensation for British and French interests which Nasser seized at the time of the Suez Canal seizure, and the release of Egyptian funds which Britain and France seized in retaliation.

These negotiations have been going on sporadically since last May.

Overall, the big question is whether Nasser is worried enough over Egypt's dependence on Russia to be reasonable.

Rooms in Style Again With Home Planners

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UP)—Look what's new in home design. Rooms.

The interior design trend is away from the "living area" plan and back to the "division of areas," said William D. Hamilton, executive secretary of the American Institute of Decorators.

Hamilton said there are two major reasons for the return of the old-fashioned house where once again a dining room is just that — not an alcove in the living room.

Gay Pauley

"Families got tired of everything mixed up together," he said. "Of one huge room being the center for eating, reading, watching television, sewing and entertaining."

Adverse To Caverns

"And families also found that to decorate a living area is costly," he added. "I'd rather do four rooms than one of those caverns. The decorator HAS to break a big room up. That can take an awful lot of furnishings."

Hamilton, a native of Elyria, Ohio and a World War II pilot, has been secretary of the decorator group which has 1,700 members since 1952.

He said in an interview that interior decor is on an "elegance" kick, probably because we Americans got "a bit too casual" and because the "general education level is higher than ever before."

"More of us appreciate quality," he explained.

"Semantically I suppose elegance means obedience," said the decorator. "To me, it represents a fuller life, a desire to live better on the money we spend, no matter what the income.

Sterile Furniture Out

"It marks the end of sterile furniture. The chrome era is over. The rich wood finishes are back. Fabrics no longer are shiny and flat, but have body and feel."

With the new formality of furnishings comes the revival of the dining room and what Hamilton called "controlled entertaining."

He said the mass cocktail party is a fading custom. Now, he said, the sit-down dinner with a limited number of guests is the housewife's favorite way of having company, no matter what her budget.

"Seems to me everybody's taken up cooking," said Hamilton. "And the woman who is a good cook likes to impress someone besides her family. Guests now expect to be fed . . . and not just canapes."

The Views of Others—

N. Ken. GOP Revives

(From the Daily Dispatch, New Kensington)

Chances are, mostly city Republicans are downcast at the results of Tuesday's elections.

They need not be.

Consider this: Before May, the city Republican organization, if it could be called that, was at an extremely low ebb. There was serious doubt whether the Republicans would field — or find a candidate for mayor.

When the slate was finally selected, the Republicans boosted no less than five spanking new candidates, unexposed to the trials of political campaigning. Included were two women candidates, something of a novelty for New Kensington.

The Republican candidates included an athletic coach, an accountant, a cost estimator, a public relations man, a housewife, real estate agent, and a woman who was familiar with the problems of finances. This highly unusual group approached the political scene in a different way than the citizens are normally accustomed.

Of course, they shook hands, attended teas, and made personal contacts.

The Republican candidates didn't rely on this customary approach, however. They explored the issues, examined the Democratic record, and kept the campaign on a high level.

For this, the citizens of New Kensington are indebted to them.

Looking to the future, New Kensington Republicans, who now hold a commanding lead in Republican circles throughout the county, can prepare for better showings against the Democrats in 1958 and 1960.

A vigorous two party political system is a blessing to the citizens of the community. The Daily Dispatch urges the Republican Party of New Kensington to take stock of the November returns and plan for even livelier elections in the future.

Junior Club Fetes State President

"Federation — Whose Responsibility" was the topic chosen by Mrs. Woodrow R. Mattern as she addressed the annual guest night meeting of the Monessen Junior Women's Club last night at the Park Casino.

Mrs. Mattern, president of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Women's Clubs, commended the local group for the part it plays in supporting a local service program and working with the County and State Federation on the advocated projects. She pointed out that individually a clubwoman can do little, and a club can only achieve on a local basis. By joining with other county, state and national clubwomen the results of their efforts can be stupendous.

Record Program

Mrs. Mattern outlined the proposed research program planned by the State Federation at Women's Medical College in Philadelphia, and asked the continued support of the Junior Club.

The guest speaker was introduced by Mrs. Robert Gilotty, program chairman. Mrs. Mattern is the official head of a group of nearly 88,000 state clubwomen.

Mrs. John R. McGovern, club president, was in charge and introduced the following guests: Mrs. Shelby D. Ferguson and Bernice Turney, Tuesday Evening Civic Club of Belle Vernon; Mr. and Mrs. Dick Bendle of New Kensington; Mrs. Carol Phares, Junior Club representative; Mrs. J. Rosenberg's of Charleroi presented a fashion show with Dave Rosenberg as commentator. Club members who acted as models were Mrs. Emery Andricovich Jr., Mrs. Jack Monack, Myra Bakale, Nancy Kuvinka, Irene Sovich and Carol Spiegelberg.

Before the program there was a business session which began with the club collect by Nancy Kuvinka.

An invitation was received to a Westmoreland County Federation tea in Greensburg on Dec. 7.

The budget for the year was adopted on the card party held for the benefit of the mentally retarded children of the county, and $130 was sent to this fund.

Mrs. Joseph M. Dudas reported for Janice Calderone, who directed the UNICEF drive conducted locally by the school children under the club's direction. The sum of $331.29 was raised for the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

Mrs. McGovern named Mrs. Lee Jones to serve as an essay judge for the Chamber of Commerce next week. Club members were urged to bring their stamps for veterans to the next meeting of which Myra Bakale will be in charge along with members of the fine arts committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Pysh
(Cecelia Marie Dacko)

Local Girl, Carnegie Man Wed at St. Nicholas Church

Cecelia Marie Dacko, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dacko of Shepler Hill, Monessen, became the bride of Daniel J. Pysh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wasyl Pysh of Brunswick Street, Carnegie, on Saturday, October 5. The ceremony was solemnized at 1 o'clock at the St. Nicholas Ukrainian Orthodox Church on Reed Avenue.

The Very Rev. Michael A. Yarosh officiated at the double ring ceremony and was assisted by the Rev. Andrew Beck of Carnegie before an altar decorated with vases of white gladiolus. Mrs. Metro Haritan of Carnegie sang the vocals and the choir of Sts. Peter and Paul Church of Carnegie sang the responses.

White crash lined the church aisle and miniature colonial bouquets of white nylon net centered with flowers and satin streamers marked the pews.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. After the ceremony the bride placed a bouquet of white roses at the Icon of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

The bride wore a floor length gown of rosepoint lace and Italian silk. It was fashioned with a mandarin neck, long pointed sleeves and fitted bodice of lace. Monessen AD On Road to Recovery

Everett Pancook, Monessen High School's Director of Athletics is just about ready to get back on the job following surgery at Presbyterian Hospital, Pittsburgh. . . . The operation was a success and the AD is now recuperating at home. . . . This is one time, however, he wishes he didn't have a desk job for standing will be much more comfortable for awhile . . . We had a chat with him yesterday regarding the many postponements on the valley grid schedules, especially Monessen's card, which shows only five games played . . . Word is still being awaited on the Brownsville and Hempfield games which should follow the Donora game this coming Friday night . . . Plans have called for a Thanksgiving game with Brownsville but no official word from the Brownies as yet.

* * *

Speaking of postponements, the WPIAL football Committee, headed by Walter (Tony) Bazard, Har-Brack Principal, will meet in special session tomorrow afternoon, to attempt to iron out difficulties at least where the contenders for the AA, A and B crowns are concerned . . . Montour Joint High School, one of the newer schools in WPIAL "B" competition has a tackle who goes 6-3 and weighs 300 pounds, claiming to be the heaviest player in the WPIAL . . . Montour is in the Moon Run area around the Pittsburgh sector . . . Fran Rogel, the Pittsburgh Steeler fullback, will be honored by his Braddock friends at halftime of the Green Bay game on Sunday, Nov. 24.

Galaski Leading Jacket Receiver

Ed Galaski, former Greyhound gridder, who has been snagging passes from Waynesburg College Quarterback Art Walker, all season long, surely was not surprised to find that he's leading pass receiver on the team to date with 21 catches good for 350 yards and two touchdowns . . . Mrs. Joseph Karbowsky, already the proud mother of three gridders, two in high school (Joe and Ron) and one in the Midget League (Ted), now has a fourth boy to prep for the gridiron . . . Three sons in one family playing the grid sport, simultaneously, ought to be some sort of record . . . Son Joe also plays basketball for the 'Hounds . . . Speaking of the cage sport, West Virginia this season will have no less than three captains for basketball, all seniors. One of them, Lloyd Sharrar, is a 6-10 (yes, ten) center.

* * *

Did you know that bowling is more popular in Omaha than any spot in the nation, that is statistic-wise . . . For instance, there are 328 bowling alleys in Omaha for its nearly 300,000 persons . . . Actually, the sport is just as popular, if not more so, right here in the Keystone State . . . So many colleges have included bowling in their plans for recreation centers we wouldn't be surprised if the ball and pin sport became the next intercollegiate game . . . Imagine reading where Notre Dame edged Pitt by three pins instead of three points! . . . That's one sport that could have a "bowl game" every night (ouch!) . . . Monessen certainly rates high as a bowling center with the many leagues and first-rate (CIO and Grand Parlor) alleys.

Brickner Gave Local Group 'Scoop'

Gus Brickner, the valley's cold water champion, apparently gave the Belle Vernon Knights of Columbus a "scoop" announcement when he told them he would attempt to swim the English Channel again next Summer . . . After he informed the Knights of his plans, and it was reported here, two days later the story broke in the Pittsburgh papers and on the UP wire . . . The season ticket demand for the new Los Angeles Dodgers is so great that the new "Bums" may not play one game in their Wrigley home Field which seats around 25,000 but will move to the huge Coliseum (over 100,000) for all home tilts . . . Plans originally called for playing 50 or 60 games there, regardless but the hue and cry for season ducats is so great a complete switch is seen necessary.

All-Stars, Jefferson in 13-13 Tie

Crabtree, Nuzzaci, Francia Tally in Thrilling Contest

Jefferson's 1957 champions of the Monessen Midget Football League and the '57 All-Stars battled on even terms at Memorial Stadium here last night in one of the most thrilling games seen in the league's history, finally stalemating at 13-13 before a fairly large crowd in the season finale.

As usual for Jefferson it was Eric Crabtree who stood out but he received fine assistance from an alert line and backfield teammate Keith Bellora.

Jerry Francia and Ralph Nuzzaci were the big guns for the All-Stars with plenty of help from Jim Saxson, Johnny Popovich, Sam Hamlin and Bill Tweardy.

Following a scoreless first quarter, Crabtree started things humming with a dash off right tackle and a cut to the outside for a 45-yard run to touchdown land on the second play of the second period.

A pass interception had stopped an All-Star drive just prior to Crabtree's dash. The flashy Jefferson halfback also plunged for the extra point.

All-Stars Come Back

The All-Stars came back in fine fashion, however, when, after taking the ball on Jefferson's 30 following a bad punt they started a drive which paid off with a touchdown and tying extra point.

Jerry Francia, of Franklin, paced the drive with dashes of six, eight and 12 yards finally going over from the three. He also dove over for the point after the six-pointer.

Early in the third period, Crabtree carried for 25 yards after stopping an All-Star drive and again for 59 yards on another beautiful touchdown scamper. Bellora was stopped short on the extra point attempt and the Jeffs had a 13-7 lead to take into the final quarter.

Coach Dale Simpson's All-Stars weren't finished, however, and Nuzzaci, Francia and Hamlin took turns carrying the ball to the Jefferson 25 from where Nuzzaci on the old-fashioned end-around play raced almost unmolested into paydirt territory. Francia was held short of the goal line on the extra-point attempt.

Both teams missed other opportunities to score in the last quarter. Carmen DeMarco's Jeffersons, with Crabtree leading the way, went to the All-Star 27 but Ron Smith of the Stars threw Bellora for an eight-yard loss and Crabtree was dropped for a 10-yard loss.

Saxson in Thriller

After a Crabtree to Frezzell pass carried to the Stars' 38, the stage was set for a real thriller when All-Star tackle Jim Saxson, of Frank-Lin, stole the ball during a handoff in the Jefferson backfield and went 48 yards to the Jefferson 12.

The Stars appeared "in" but were stopped by a fumble on the two-yard line. Crabtree treated the fans to one more brilliant run, a 38-yarder to the 41 where the Stars held and took over on downs but it was too late for time had run out on the game and the '57 season.

It was a thriller which veteran observers termed one of the best ever played in the local league.

First downs favored the All-Stars, 7-4

The crowd was double what it has been and the Lions Club, which handled the collection duties, reported a better than average "gate."

Aldrich Returns to Action

All Other 'Hounds Ready

"Bobo's back and the rest of the squad is in pretty fair shape," said Armand Niccolai, Monessen High football coach, in commenting on the Greyhounds' physical condition for the Donora game at Donora Friday night. The mental condition of the squad is something else.

Niccolai reported the only casualties this week appear to be Ken Bronson, speedy halfback, who is suffering a charley horse and George Guibourdanche, regular end, who is being bothered by recurrent headaches.

Should these two regulars not start, Jim Lewtisky will go to the halfback slot, where he has shown well in the past few games and Steve Burns will get the end call.

Regular Starters Set

Otherwise the starters will be Denny O'Toole at the other end, Ed Allen and Aldrich at tackles with Vince Pascarella also seeing action, Terry Throop and Bob Pauline or Dan Blythe, who has been making an impressive showing of late, at guards, with either Lou Gigliotti or Mike Churan at center.

In the backfield Dan Barton is expected to get help from Carl Payne at quarterback with Joe Karbowsky at the other halfback opposite Lewtisky or Bronson, and a possibility Andy Carollo, sophomore fullback, will get the nod instead of Carl Rattay, who has been limping on a sore ankle.

Defensively, Nick will use Chuck Chester and Throop in the middle of the line, Bobo and Allen at tackles, Burns, O'Toole and Guibourdanche on the outside with Rattay, Carrollo, Pauline, Barton, Lewitsky and Karbowsky at the other defensive slots.

A scrimmage session today is expected to wind up heavy drills for the Dragon tilt.

Donora Game Tickets Go On Sale Tonight

Reserved seat tickets for the Monessen-Donora game will go on sale tonight at the Greyhound gym office from 7 until 9 o'clock, MHS Faculty Manager of Athletics Armand Mori announced today.

Big Five Conference Scoring Race 'Tight'

Charleroi's Joe Uhlman scored two touchdowns against Monongahela Friday night to increase his lead over Donora's Angie Dabiero, who was able to ramble to paydirt only once against Washington High. Uhlman now shows 11 touchdowns and one extra point for 67 markers. Dabiero has nine touchdowns and a single point after for 55 total.

Ken Bronson, Monessen High's halfback ace, tallied once against Duquesne but Donora's other TD twin, (in addition to Dabiero) Tom Urbanik, cracked over for a six-pointer against Washington to keep pace with the 'Hound back and tie for third place with 48 markers on six TDs.

Three Still Tied

Another oddity about the scoring race saw three players, previously tied with 18 points, Jimmy Robertson of Monongahela, Ken Strelick of Charleroi and Art Bentley of Brownsville, all score a single touchdown to tie again for seventh place, this time with 24 points each.

Monessen end Dennis O'Toole climbed in the race with a six-pointer against Duquesne and now owns 12 points.

Four new additions to the scorint list this week include Tom Hodgson of Charleroi (12), Tracey Robertson of Monongahela (7), Butler Roddy of Donora (6), and Don Seddon, Brownsville (1).

Heinrich Will Play

NEW YORK (UP)— New York Giants quarterback Don Heinrich will play Sunday against the Philadelphia Eagles, the team physician said today. Heinrich, sidelined since Oct. 5 with a broken bone in his thumb, resumed practice Tuesday.

Bellmar Awaiting N. Union

Coach Bap Manzini's Bellmar Hurricanes get a chance to finish the season on the winning side of the ledger when they host a tough North Union team tomorrow night at Bellmar Stadium.

The Hurricanes now stand at 4-4 for the season and can post a winning campaign with a triumph over the Rams.

After a slow start, the Hurricanes have come on to play impressive ball of late, climaxed by the triumph over Dunbar last week on top of a heart-breaking 6-0 loss to South Union the week before.

North Union is on the other side of the fence, having started very strong, keeping in the middle of the "A" championship race but has faltered in the past two games and lost to German and South Union.

Even Match Seen

The scores of these two defeats, 25-0 and 13-7 were, however, by approximately the same margins as the 'Cane defeats at the hands of the same foes, which promises an even match tomorrow night.

Coached by Nick Bubonovich, the North Union gridders are annually one of the toughest in Class A ranks and will be on the rebound from those two losses, a bad omen for any foe.

Manzini will naturally have his Hurricanes fired to fever pitch to make up for that unimpressive start.

North Union will feature a brother act in the backfield in W. and L. Swaney but have a back named Yauger who also bears watching as do Krevinko and Saluga.

Bellmar will be hoping Denny Swiantek continues to give hard-running Reggie Kostelac ball-carrying help and that Ronnie Coates' pitching arm stays "warmed up".

Game time tomorrow night is 8 o'clock.

Irene Kandrick Paces Slovak Ladies Action

Irene Kandrick had the top card in Slovak Ladies Bowling League action last night as Holy Name and Christian Mothers copped victories.

Other leading scorers were Elsie Demchak, Mary Hornack, Mary Hardon and Lee Kolvek.

Standings — Christian Mothers 20-7, Ladies Auxiliary 18-9, Slovak Home 7-20, and Holy Name 9-18.

NEW YORK (UP) — Jockey Johnny Ruane rode three winners at Jamaica Tuesday, including both parts of a $36.60 daily double and the Valenzuela brothers also won three, two by Ismael and one by Angel.

Browns' O'Connell Tops Passers in National League

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — The Cleveland Browns, content to win the most games with the least fanfare in the statistics columns, finally popped to the front in the National Football League figures by placing Tommy O'Connell first among the passers.

O'Connell took over as the league's leading passer by ousting Eddie Le Baron of the Redskins. Rookie Jim Brown muscled himself into second place among the individual rushers.

O'Connell, completing 7 of 11 for 156 yards and two touchdowns against Pittsburgh last weekend, posted an average of 10.04 yards gained for every pass thrown as the Redskins' little star dropped to a 9.27 yard average.

Round Out 1st Five

John Unitas, Baltimore (8.18), Lamar McHan, Chicago Cardinals (8.15) and Eddie Brown of the Chicago Bears (7.82) completed the first five.

Tommy Wilson of Los Angeles, the leader in individual rushing with 501 yards, retained first position, but the line-busting Brown jumped into second place with a 464 yard total. The two were followed by Hugh McElhenny of San Francisco (452) and Ollie Matson of the Cardinals (436).

Lanky Jack MacLairen of the Pittsburgh Steelers, latching on to seven passes for the second week in a row, took over first place in pass receiving with 31 completions to displace Clyde Conner of San Francisco, the leader for four weeks. Conner had 30 catches. Ray Berry of Baltimore, who caught 12 for 224 yards last week, jumped into third place with a total of 26.

Berry High in Yardage

Berry's total yardage of 483 was high, and Jim Mutscheller of Baltimore had the most touchdown receptions with seven.

George Blanda of the Bears continued to lead in scoring with 48 points. Mutscheller shared second place with Matson, who wasn't in the first 10 one week ago. Each has 42 points.

Don Chandler of the Giants ousted Norm Van Brocklin of the Rams as punting leader with a 45.2-yard average, while Joe Scudero of the Redskins remained as leader in punt returns. Don McIlhenny of Green Bay retained first place in kickoff returns and Jack Butler of the Steelers held on in first place in pass interceptions with eight.

Steel Bowl Cage Pairings Listed

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Duquesne meets Miami of Ohio and Pitt will play George Washington in the first round of the seventh annual Steel Bowl Basketball Tournament on Friday, Dec. 13, it was announced today.

The winners will meet the following day for the championship, with the losers playing a consolation match.

The tournament will be played at Pitt's Memorial Field House. Pitt took the cup last year. Duquesne won in 1953 and again in 1955, while George Washington was the victor in 1954.

Oklahoma Favored by 18 Points Over Irish; Iowa One Over OSU

NEW YORK (UP)— Iowa was rated one point over Ohio State in their possible Big Ten championship game Saturday, Oklahoma was favored by 18 over Notre Dame in the nationally-televised game, and Texas A&M, No. 1 team in the nation, was only seven points over Rice.

Iowa and Ohio State both are unbeaten in conference play, and an Ohio State victory would clinch a Rose Bowl bid. While Saturday's winner will not have clinched the Big Ten crown, it will be in the favored position.

Oklahoma Coach Bud Wilkinson is on record as fearing Notre Dame in their game at Norman, Okla., and the 18-point spread was larger than expected.

Three games were rated even on this week's card — South Carolina at Virginia, Miami (Ohio) at Dayton, and Mississippi State at Louisiana State in a night game. In a Friday night game, Miami (Florida) was favored by 7 over Maryland.

Michigan State was favored by 14 over Minnesota at East Lansing, Mich., Duke was 7 over Clemson at Durham, N. C., and Auburn was 14 over Georgia at Columbus, Ga.

Point spreads on other major games:

East — Boston College 19 over Marquette; Penn 8 over Columbia; Dartmouth 13 over Cornell; Brown 2 over Harvard; Penn State 3 over Holy Cross; Princeton 7 over Yale; Syracuse 1 over Colgate; Army 1 over Tulane; Navy 27 over George Washington.

South — North Carolina State 8 over Virginia Tech; Florida 7 over Vanderbilt; Kentucky 16 over Xavier (Ohio); West Virginia 13 over Wake Forest; Georgia Tech 13 over Alabama Tennessee 7 over Mississippi.

Midwest—Purdue 18 over Northwestern Missouri 11 over Kansas State; Wisconsin 4 over Illinois; Tulsa 1 over Cincinnati; Colorado 12 over Nebraska; Oklahoma State 7 over Kansas.

Southwest — Texas Christian 2 over Texas Arkansas 1 over Southern Methodist.

Far West — Washington State 7 over Idaho; California 4 over Washington; Oregon 7 over Southern California; Oregon State 4

Honeymoon Seen Over For Browns in 2nd Half

By UNITED PRESS

Jack Lavelle, New York Giant scout, believes the honeymoon is over for the Cleveland Browns.

"All the National Football League teams are taking turns beating one another but you have to say the Browns have a tougher schedule than the Giants during the second half of the season," Lavelle said as he estimated New York's chances of overhauling Cleveland in the Eastern Division. "Cleveland has played the easy part of its schedule."

The Browns, leading the Giants by one game, have road games with the Washington Redskins, Detroit Lions, and Giants. They have home games with the Chicago Cardinals and Los Angeles Rams. The Giants have road games with the Cardinals and Pittsburgh Steelers and home games with the Philadelphia Eagles and San Francisco Forty-Niners before entertaining the Browns.

Lavelle tabs the Lions and Cardinals as two of Cleveland's chief hurdles.

The Giants are 11-point choices to whip the Eagles Sunday at Yankee Stadium but the Browns are favored by only four against the Redskins at Washington. New York edged Philadelphia, 24-20, while Cleveland downed Washington, 21-17, earlier this season.

In the other games Sunday, the Lions are favored over the Forty-Niners by 4½ at Detroit, the Bears are six-point choices against the Baltimore Colts at Chicago, and the Rams are favored by five against the Green Bay Packers at Milwaukee. The Cardinals and Pittsburgh Steelers are idle because their game at Chicago was set back to Dec. 22.

This week's United Press selections: Giants (5-2) over Eagles (2-5), Browns (6-1) over Redskins (2-5), Lions (4-3) over Forty-Niners (5-2), Bears (3-4) over Colts (4-3), Packers (2-5) over Rams (3-4).

New Ken Board Member Suggests Dropping Football

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa. (UP) —New Kensington high school football coach Don Fletcher said Tuesday that tackle Jerry Eberhardt suffered only a cramp in the Har-Brack game and did not play while injured.

Fletcher's statement was in reply to a motion of a school board member that football at the school be eliminated.

Dr. Carl G. Vonderheid had told the board "I don't approve of the coach using injured players" and had criticized the bad manners which he said the game stirred up in fans and the student body.

Vonderheid's statement, made Monday night, was not seconded.

Fletcher, in reply to Vonderheid, countered: "If he thinks I played an injured player, he was misinformed. It didn't happen."

Fletcher said the report that he had used an injured player stemmed from an incident in the Har-Brack game earlier in the season.

The coach said Eberhardt had been taken out of the game when he suffered a cramp in his leg, was put back in when the pain disappeared and then had to be taken out again for the cramp. The boy had suffered a knee injury earlier in the year, and some fans thought "it was the boy's knee that hurt," Fletcher said.

Bud Wilkinson Named UP 'Coach of Week'

NORMAN, Okla. (UP)—He says "we hope we will be good enough to win, but if we play the best we can we don't mind losing."

He almost forgets what it is to lose because his team hasn't lost o game since its opener in 1953. He is so happy in his adopted state that he once turned down a bonus of two yachts (one air conditioned) and two oil wells if he would take another coaching job.

He's Charles (Bud) Wilkinson, the United Press Coach of the Week after his Sooners whipped Missouri, 39-14, Saturday to clinch the Big Eight championship and an Orange Bowl trip.

Titles Nothing New

Both are old hat for Wilkinson teams, which tied for the conference title in 1947, his first year at Oklahoma, and have won every year since. Wilkinson's record against conference opposition is a gaudy 60-0-2. His previous bowl teams have won four out of five and will be favored this time over its Atlantic Coast Conference rival, probably Duke.

There are two sides to the Oklahoma football dynasty under the 41-year-old Wilkinson. The statistical part is fantastic — a 97-7-3 record for 10-plus seasons, 47 straight victories and 123 games without being shut out.

Previous Teams Better

Most football observers feel the 1957 Sooners, while beating everyone on a not-so-tough schedule, don't measure up to previous Wilkinson powerhouses. While Bud won't get involved in a comparison, he did warn before the start of the season that Oklahoma fans shouldn't expect so much this year.

This week, Oklahoma plays Notre Dame. Wilkinson recalls that after Notre Dame beat Army, the Irish warned that their main target was Oklahoma.

"You might say we're sort of stepping out of the frying pan into the fire," Wilkinson sighed.

Frank Lane

Frank Lane Gets 'Free Hand' As Cleveland GM

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UP)—New general manager Frank Lane of the Cleveland Indians arrived here today to begin flexing the "free hand" the Tribe directors promised when they announced his appointment Tuesday.

It was unqualified control of the Indians which Lane sought when he offered himself to the directors. Until Lane acted, the Indians recognized the claim of the St. Louis Cardinals on Lane.

Once it was clear that Lane sincerely wanted to accept the Cleveland challenge, he got his contract on his terms. First was that "free hand." Then came "a three-year contract and a higher salary than I got in St. Louis."

Lane arrived for a one day look around Cleveland. He was due to return to St. Louis for one day, then fly to Havana to confer with the Tribe's new field manager, Bobby Bragan, who is piloting a club there.

"I know the Cleveland club well," Lane said. "But it's premature to talk deals. The ultimate decisions will be made by Bragan and Lane."

Lane recommended Bragan strongly to Greenberg while Hank was seeking a successor to one-year field manager Kerby Farrell. Lane termed his new partner "a very good manager — with creative ability."

ELMER OLIPHANT

As a West Point cadet in the pre-World War I days when athletes were eligible for four varsity sports, Elmer Oliphant won more letters than any West Pointer in history. His fame was widest in football and twice (1916-17) he was an All-America halfback on Army teams that dropped only one game in those two years.

Whatever happened to Elmer Oliphant? Today, his Army ties long since severed, he is a New York vice president of a large insurance company (Prudential).

Michelosen, Lewis, Rip Engle To Attend Big Five Loop Fete

Tri-state college football coaches have always been a welcome sight at the Mon Valley Sports Writers' football feast and this year's no exception.

Among those who will try to impress upon the Mon Valley Conference (Big 5) all-stars the importance of gaining a college education, preferably at their own schools, are Johnny Michelosen of Pitt, Art Lewis of West Virginia and Rip Engle of Penn State.

The "Big Three" are among the many sports celebrities scheduled to put in an appearance at the annual dnner coming up Wednesday, Dec. 11, at Twin Coaches and featuring Terry Brennan, Notre Dame's youthful mentor, as guest speaker.

Still other tri-state coaches who will join Michelosen, Lewis and Engle include Dr. Eddie Baker of Carnegie Tech, Al DeLuca of St. Vincent, Ed Chupa of Washington and Jefferson, Johnny Popovich of Waynesburg and Ted Nemeth of California Teachers.

Numerous other colleges and universities will be represented at the affair in form of assistants and scouts, among them Johnny Butler of Penn and Bill Smaltz of North Carolina State.

Tickets for the affair will go on sale Nov. 18 and will be available at agencies in Charleroi, Monessen, Monongahela, Donora, Brownsville, Uniontown and Washington.

Amherst Leading In Lambert Cup

NEW YORK (UP)—Unbeaten Amherst took over the lead today in the balloting for the first Annual Lambert Cup, emblematic of Eastern small college football supremacy.

The Lord Jeffs moved to the top with a rating of 9.8 points in the voting by coaches and sports writers as Lehigh, which had been leading through most of the season, dropped to second place at 9.0 points after suffering its first loss of the season at the hands of VMI.

Amherst has won all its seven games, rolling up 264 points to only 40 for its rivals, who have scored only two touchdowns.

Door-to-door salesmen are selling "vitamin preparations" these days and you may think these are therapeutic doses They may or may not be Point is, that you can't know whether they are or not and the salesman probably isn't qualified to know whether you ever need them If you do need vitamins in the therapeutic quantities only your physician can tell you what you need and how much, and only your registered pharmacist should dispense them Where your health is concerned always rely on competent professionals

Prepares for Merger

HARRISBURG (UPI)—The state Bureau of Social Security for Public Employes is readying a "crash program to complete the merger of state and federal pension systems

Bureau Director Paul C Moomaw said wage report forms would be mailed to the estimated 135 000 state workers and school employes now under federal Social Security this week The reports have to be filled out and returned to the bureau for tabulation and forwarding to Washington by Jan 10.

Moomaw said the time element made the job a "tremendous task" because late filing with the government carries a penalty of one-half of 1 per cent. He said the state's payment would total between 18 and 25 million dollars.

The merger of public school employes retirement plan and the state workers system with federal social security was approved last August during a special referendum The integration was retroactive to Jan 1, 1956 or the date of employment, whichever date was later.

Antonin Zapotocky Is Dead, Czech President

VIENNA (UP) — President Antonin Zapotocky of Czechoslovakia, who masterminded the Communist coup of his country in 1948, died today of a heart attack He would have been 73 on Dec. 19

Prague Radio made the announcement on its regular 7 a m (1 a.m. est) broadcast and then followed it with funeral music. The broadcast said Zapotocky died two hours earlier following another heart attack

Zapotocky, who led a charmed life amidst purges behind the Iron Curtain, died in the Prague State Sanatorium He was taken there seriously ill Nov 4 He had suffered his first attack two years ago

Took Part in Red Coup

Zapotocky was one of the Reds that engineered the Communist takeover of Czechoslovakia in 1948 and promptly became premier He rose to the presidency on the death of Klement Gottwald in March, 1953

Zapotocky was born in a Bohemian coal-mining district west of Prague, the son of a tailor who was one of the founders of the Czech Socialist Party. He became a stone-cutter and fought in the Austro-Hungarian army during World War I.

War Prisoner in WW II

During World War II he spent time in German concentration camps

When he became premier in 1948 he told parliament Czechoslovakia's agricultural and industrial systems would be reconstructed to "eliminate every vestige of the capitalistic system"

He kept Czechoslovakia closely allied with the Kremlin to the end of his life and Czechoslovakia has given little or no indication of turning toward the "independent" brands of Communism embraced by Poland and Yugoslavia.

RECORD FLIGHT — Gen. Curtis Lemay (middle) holds a briefing with officers at Westover Air Force Base, Mass., before taking off in a KC-135 Stratotanker (shown) with a crew of 18 on a record flight—to Buenos Aires via Fortaleza, Brazil (map). The 6,300-mile hop is the longest non-stop, non-refueling flight for jets on record. With Lemay are Maj. Gen. William P. Fischer (left) and Capt. Charles Gandy.

Gen. LeMay Returns From Record Flight

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UP)—Gen. Curtis LeMay took off today for the return flight of his record-breaking Stratojet tanker which set a new long distance record of 6,300 miles Tuesday.

LeMay lifted the giant tanker into the air at 6:30 a.m. (5:30 a.m. e.s.t.) for the flight to Washington, in another of the series of American efforts to emphasize the power and range of the U.S. Strategic Air Force.

He carried with him a letter from President Pedro Aramburu to President Eisenhower hailing Tuesday's record flight for a jet plane which was not refuelled in flight. The trip down through the substratosphere required 13 hours and 3½ minutes—an average of nearly 490 miles per hour.

The flight coincided today with an 8,100 non-stop flight from California to the Philippines by three B66 bombers of the U.S. Tactical Air Command in another show of global strength. These planes were refuelled several times en route.

U.S. jet bombers refueld in flight have flown nonstop around the world.

LeMay's plane was a four-jet KC-135, the military version of the Boeing 707 jet airliners. It was designed to refuel American jet bombers in the air, thus enabling them to strike almost anywhere in the world in event of a war.

LeMay said before his departure he hoped to set a new speed record on the flight back to the United States—a move that would help to recover some of the prestige lost by the United States when the Russians launched two earth satellites.

Before board the plane LeMay said he would try to make a record flight to Andrews Air Force Base, Washington, D.C., in 11 hours as against 13 hours and 3½ minutes on his flight here from Westover Field, Mass.

Mediator to Stay in Pittsburgh for Talks

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service has ordered one of its members to remain in Pittsburgh and seek an end to the transit strike "no matter how long it takes."

Commissioner G. Harry Young, who helped conduct an unsuccessful joint negotiating session Tuesday, received the orders shortly before he was to fly to Salt Lake City for a seminar.

Young and State Conciliator Joseph Bach have been trying to seek a solution to the 31-day walkout which has idled 2,200 employes of the Pittsburgh Railways Co., the city's principal mass transit system.

Robert A. Donnahoo, regional director of the Federal Mediation Service, said the agency was "deeply concerned" with the strike and its effect on the city's economy. He said the service will not hold out "any false hope" for a quick solution but will do its "utmost" to bring both parties "into real collective bargaining, which is the only ay this strike can be settled."

"For that reason, I am instructing Commissioner Young to remain in Pittsburgh, no matter how long it takes, and be in constant touch with union and management and exercise his experienced judgment to bring about an agreement when he recognizes the time is ripe for a settlement. The transit strike, we recognize, is one where peace cannot be forced," Donnahoo said.

In Tuesday's session, Young and Bach brought union and management representatives together for the first face-to-face meeting since Oct. 22. The session broke up with mediators announcing that "nothing new was accomplished."

The union has demanded a wage increase of 36 cents an hour in a two-year contract plus fringe benefits. The company has offered 16 cents.

Charles D. Palmer, president of the transit company, has said the fringe benefits in themselves would add an additional 64 cents per hour to the company's labor cost. He charged the package which the union demands would cost Pittsburgh Railways $1 per hour per employee.

Steel Production Is Down Across Nation

NEW YORK (UP) — Steel production last week fell below the 2 million-ton mark for the first time since last summer's steel strike, American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

A further reduction is anticipated this week, the institute said. you a fair deal.

ning today are scheduled to operate at 77.5 per cent of rated capacity, which would yield 1,984,000 tons. This would be equivalent to 123 5 per cent of the 1947-49 production index.

Last week the industry turned out 1,996,000 tons of steel while operating at 78 per cent of capacity. The index was 124 3.

This is the lowest weekly production since early in August 1956, when the third longest strike in history came to an end. In the week of Aug 6, when the industry was bringing its facilities back into production, output amounted to 1,415,000 tons. Operations in that week amounted to 57.5 per cent of capacity.

A spokesman for the institute said Veterans Day will have little effect on steel operations this week

A month ago the mills operated at 80 9 per cent of capacity and produced 2,070,000 tons, for an index rating of 128 9

A year ago, when the industry was operating full blast to catch up with demand, production amounted to 2,466,000 tons. The operating rate was 10 2 per cent and the index 153 5.

The year's weekly production high was hit in the period beginning Jan 7 when the mills operated at 98.4 per cent of capacity and produced 2,519,000 tons That figure has not been approached since.

Production has hovered around the 2 million-ton mark since July.

The anticipated fourth quarter upswing in business has not materialized. Steel production has been declining in recent weeks at a time when it historically has gone up.

Biochemist Says Cancer Drive Is 'Encouraging'

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — A prominent biochemist said Tuesday that a campaign against cancer by developing a "selective starvation" of malignant cells was "most encouraging"

Dr William G Batt, director of the Biochemical Research Foundation of the Franklin Institute, told a luncheon group that cancer may be brought under control within 15 years by attacks on the disease through surgery, chemical therapy and radiation.

Dr. Batt described an experimental process using synthetic chemicals to starve the cancerous cells by luring them away from good cells. The experiments with laboratory animals were based on a relationship between diets and cancer with false sugars or metabolisms injected into the bodies to divert the cancer cells.

Laboratory rats with ailments common to elderly persons were still able to carry on if subjected to the synthetic diets, he said.

Unreality Is Reality, Mental Expert Says

NEW YORK (UP) — Those experts who preach that the very essence of mental health is knowing reality when you see it and rejecting all things which are not equal, have been challenged by an expert of another stripe

Dr Claude C Bowman, of Temple University, admitted he was no mental health expert although he is a sociologist and anthropologist

Various psychiatric ideas of mental health to the contrary, a certain amount of unreality just has to exist in mental processes if minds are going to be healthy and have high morale said Bowman

Unreality Is Reality

Indeed, unreality is the reality of every day life as most of us know it, he continued, and called the attention of scientific reality proponents to their own (and Bowman's) little world which is the world of scholarship

'As subject-matter in various fields of knowledge has broken down into more specialties scholars tend to concentrate upon knowing more and more about less and less," he said "Under these circumstances it is easy, and perhaps necessary to overvalue the particular segment of knowledge where one's own proficiency lies.

"Such over-evaluation seems integral to professional adjustment in the academic world as it exists.

In short, academic people "like other practical men of affairs, accept the reality principle only so far as it is practical to do so" But take love, he said. It is "fashionable" for scientific experts to "decry romantic illusions (such as, "Love is blind,") and urge a more realistic point of view "

'Realism' Doesn't Understand

But this "realism" fails to understand that love is loaded with unrealities Nor are these 'elements necessarily harmful; in many instances they are distinctly advantages to both persons "

Parents Given Some Views on Discipline; Try Some 'Toleration'

(This is the third and last of a series of articles on misbehavior. Today Dr Fritz Redl gives parents some pointers on discipline.)

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UP) — Do you always think of discipline as a system of rewards and punishments? Do you drag the kitchen sink" into every conflict you have with your child? Do you find it hard to give a child "a clean yes or a clean no?"

These according to Dr Fritz Redl are three of the most common mistakes that parents make in disciplining their children

Redl is chief of the Laboratory for Child Research at the National Institute of Mental Health Here are some of his views on discipline based on 30 years of research on childhood behavior problems

Try "Toleration"

Parents should not always go to one extreme or the other in reacting to a child's conduct There are occasions "when a child should be praised or rewarded and times when he should be scolded or punished. But there are a great many instances in which behavior should be neither approved nor disapproved but simply tolerated."

"Toleration" is a good way to treat misbehavior that is part of a child's normal growing pains or is "symptomatic" of inner stress or worry

A child won't "get his values confused" if you fail to crack down hard on each act of misbehavior Every child even one who is seriously disturbed "is capable of distinguishing between toleration and approval"

The fact that you tolerate a certain kind of behavior doesn't mean that you never intervene to control it On the contrary, it frequently is necessary to "set and enforce clear limits" to let a child know that you will put up with 'so much and no more' on his "age-typical" or "steam - releasing' antics

Stick To The Subject

'Kitchen - sinkism" is Redl's term for the tendency of parents to account all of a child's sins and shortcomings each time he gets into trouble instead of focusing disapproval on the "single clear issue' involved in the immediate misbehavior

A daughter who comes home later for supper is violating family rules and 'ought to be bawled out for it' But it is not the time "to revive that old wrangle about too much lipstick or her choice of gal friends or has she done her homework."

'Every time you broaden an issue unnecessarily you lay yourself open to an alibi that begs that question Kids are much better at this type of argument than you are so stay out of it"

The Clean Yes And Clean No

'If your child wants to do something and you are a little dubious about it but have decided to let him go it give your permission graciously and keep your reservations 'to yourself If you hedge your 'yes' about with all sorts of grumbling and dire warnings he will not regard it as a privilege granted by his parent, but as a victory he has won over a surly opponent

"On the other hand, if you are going to say no, then say no You can explain your reasons in a polite way, but don't get bogged down in a lot of arguments and don't be apologetic for trying to protect your child from harm

'Try to be equally clear - cut when you are setting limits—the homecoming hour, or the amount of television to be watched for example Some parents seem to think that they have to be angry, aggressive and accusing to convince a child–they mean business about enforcing a limit But a terrific fuss doesn't make a limit any more effective Clarity does

Punishment

Does Redl believe in physical punishment?

"That's like asking me if I approve of whiskey for 4 year-olds I have to say no on principle but I don't mean to imply that an occasional spanking will traumatize a child

"My main objection to physical punishment is that it is a very poor way of communicating a message to a child The instinctive reaction of a human being to physical hurt is to focus his aggression on the source of the hurt That's why a little child kicks the chair he has tripped over

'When you are disciplining a child you want him to get mad at himself — and specifically at the conduct which got him into trouble

"He is more likely to blame his own behavior for his punishment if the parent remains in the role of fair-minded dispenser of necessary justice, rather than an angry executioner who is inflicting physical pain"

Strike Talks Continue Today At Missile Site

WASHINGTON (UP) — Efforts to lift a strike threat which could shut down the U S missiles testing program at Cape Canaveral Fla resumed today under the auspices of the National Mediation Board

Mediator Alfred Della Corte said the parties in the labor dispute, Pan American Airways and the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, are showing "splendid cooperation' in talks which opened Tuesday.

Pan-American maintains and services government equipment for missile-testing at the Florida range and in the Caribbean. The union earlier had threatened to throw pickets around the test range where the first test U S earth satellite is to be launched next month

The union board of directors has authorized a strike in support of a demand that 600 employes at the center who work under the Pan American contract be included in a union shop agreement covering all the airline's employes

The union contends that the mediation board and federal courts have ruled the Cape Canaveral clerks should be included in a union contract covering the airline's other clerical workers but that the company has refused to obey the rulings

Roadblocks Are Set Up

HARLAN Ky (UP)—Police set up roadblocks throughout southeastern Kentucky and Virginia today for a man resembling the gunman who killed two North Carolina state patrolmen more than a week ago

The man answering the FBI description of the killer was reported seen in the Pine Mountain area of Letcher County, Ky., Tuesday night and was earlier reported at Whitesburg, Ky He was said to be driving a new tan and white Ford sedan similar to that believed stolen by the killer at Shively, Ky., Saturday night

The man has been sought since Nov 3 when he stole an automobile and a stole of ammunition in Pennsylvania and set out on a wild drive south, leaving a trail of stolen cars through North Carolina and Central Kentucky.

The FBI said he is believed to have stolen an automobile wrecker early last Saturday at Richmond, Ky, and later to have stolen the new Ford from a Shively auto agency

A suspect arrested at Owensboro, Ky, Monday, was found Tuesday not to match the description of the slayer Chester Dale Patterson, 37, of New Castle, Pa., was expected to be released from custody today.

Steel Demand Up to Auto

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UP)—The seasonal jump in automobile production schedules will produce greater demands upon makers in the flat-rolled steel industries over the next couple of months, Steel Magazine predicted today.

The threat of possible labor troubles at midyear and a need for building up dealers' stocks are the main reasons for the automakers large orders, the metalworking weekly said.

However, ingot production will probably remain at a "somewhat modest level," Steel reported.

Mills, the publication said, are opening books for first quarter orders on virtually all products. Incoming business was reported light with producers "not too confident" that a sizeable pickup will come this quarter.

Steel, one of the more influential among leading U.S. industrial publications, urged that President Eisenhower forget about a tax cut this year and also reduce school construction spending to pep up the nation's lagging missiles development program.

It also was suggested that "a few extra billions" of dollars could be channeled to defense purposes by "reducing farm payments and increasing postal revenues."

Mills ground out a total of about 2,021,000 net tons of steel for ingots and castings last week, holding operations steady at 79 per cent of rated capacity.

Scrap prices, generally considered the barometer of future production rates, slipped for the 12th consecutive week. Prices dropped another $2 to a level of $33.33 per gross ton, the lowest mark since December of 1954.

Oxygen Explodes

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (UP) — An elderly hospital patient was critically burned Tuesday night when he apparently struck a match under his oxygen tent. Hospital officials identified the man as Luther Brazil, 71, who was under treatment for pneumonia and a heart ailment.

LONE GIRL STUDENT—Rona Lepine, 18, is the only girl among 58 engineering students in the new college training program jointly sponsored by Pratt Institute and the U. S. Naval Shipyard in Brooklyn, N. Y. It will take her five years to get her degree in electrical engineering. After that she plans to continue to study to receive her master's degree.

Senator H. Alexander Smith — Bernard Shanley

Gov. Goodwin Knight — Senator William F. Knowland

REPUBLICAN POWER PLAYS—These four faces symbolize power plays plus a scare in Republican ranks, especially in view of Democratic Gov. Robert B. Meyner's big-margin re-election in New Jersey. Senator Smith is being forced to step aside so Bernard Shanley, recently one of President Eisenhower's aides can run for U. S senator. Smith is 77, but had intended making the race. California's Gov Knight has been powered out of running for re-election so Senator Knowland can make the try. Knight is scheduled for the Senate race, which he didn't want. That came after a talk with President Eisenhower.

Profits by GM Are Discussed

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Justice Department today studied a compromise proposal by General Motors Corp to refund the government $9 701 000 in excess profits and alleged overcharges on F84F jet fighter planes

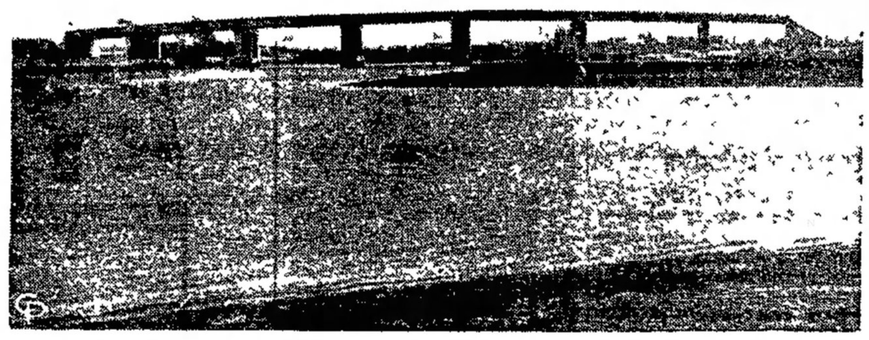
The offer was disclosed in New Orleans by Rep F Edward Hebert (DpLa) and confirmed by the General Accounting Office (GAO) which acts as a fiscal watchdog for Congress

Hebert, chairman of a House Armed Services Subcommittee which investigated the plane contract said a GAO audit showed that GM made $17 459 000 in excess profits on a contract for 599 F84F fighters built at its Kansas City plant

He said the big auto firm had insisted up to now that "it was not obligated morally legally contractually or as a matter of principle to return any of the disputed profits to the government"

The alleged overcharges occurred while General Motors was renegotiating contracts with the Air Force for 599 planes turned out in the period between 1952 and 1955

During the hearings before Hebert's subcommittee earlier this year the auto firm maintained that the profits made on the contract were 'fair and reasonable' It said its profits margin was less than that made on commercial contracts



NOT A SPECK OF TRAFFIC—This is the John H. Davis bridge in Long Beach, Calif, which cost $1,171,000 to build, and has been completed for 18 months but hasn't got a tire mark on it. When approach arrangements were started, it was learned that the northern area was owned by a 21-heir trust. The heirs want to be paid for the right-of-way. The city says the land is part of the tideland and therefore already owned by the city. The case reportedly will take about five years to settle in court.

Korea Calls for Red Withdrawal

UNITED NATIONS (UP)— The Reublic of Korea called today for the withdraval of Communist armies from North Korea and a UN supervised election there as the simplest way of uniting the divided country.

The proposals were set forth by Dr You Chan Yang the ROK ambassador to Washington, in a speech prepared for delivery this morning to the UN Political Committee.

The time to act is now," he said 'It is already later than it should be My nation cannot much longer endure being half slave and half free"

Yang denied there were "two Koreas' and said Korean people were 'one of the most homogeneous on earth" The terms North and South Korea' have absolutely no meaning, he said

'If the factor of foreign aggression is removed from the northern provinces and the people there are allowed to express their will freely, the rumification will come about as easily as the water in a cubicle will interflow and intermingle when a wall of division within is removed

Supreme Court Reverses Ruling For Arm Loss

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — The state Supreme Court Tuesday reversed a Mercer County Court ruling which ordered a farmer to pay his son $30,500 for loss of an arm in a cornhusking machine

The high court ruled that Robert W Jones Jr , 26, knew the dangers of the machine and assumed the obvious risks on Oct. 25, 1954, when his right arm was caught in its rollers at the patent's Mercer County farm

Both men own farms in Mercer County and often exchanged help in handling crops Justice John C. Bell Jr , writing in the high court's opinion, said the plaintiff's "own negligence was the sole cause of this tragic accident."

Americans Living High Off Hog and the Cuff

(The first of three articles on the small loan business Today—the credit menace and small loan companies)

By FRED DANZIG

NEW YORK (UP — Americans are living high on the hog And high on the cuff too

Among us we owe 45 billion dollars nearly 3 billion more than last year

But even as we sign IOUs we salt away cash in savings that year add up to well over 800 billion dollars

Installment credit outstanding accounts for about 33 billion dollars of the total personal debt of this commercial banks have 12 billion 300 million dollars sales finance companies (automobiles appliances) have loaned 9 billion 300 million dollars small loan companies, or consumer finance companies, have around 3 2 billion dollars this year according to the National Consumer Finance Association

One Family In Six

The 10 745 small loan offices around the nation operated by 1-550 firms claim one out of every six families for a customer and they look for a 12 to 14 per cent growth in volume next year

Is there danger in this rising installment credit spiral?

Many economists believe it is doing no harm since nobody will continue to extend new credits if repayments do not come in on schedule

Why do we borrow?

About one-third of the 16 million loans made by small loan companies this year are for debt consolidation where the borrower borrows to pay off a flock of and start off with one debt Medical and dental expenses account for 11 per cent of the small loans 8 per cent goes for appliances and upkeep Clothing accounts for 6 per cent of the loans as does travel and vacations

Many people borrow to buy things even though they have the cash They feel they never save the money again once they have their savings So they take out a loan

Installment credit is growing because we are urged to use credit for just about everything Experts however now have plans for pre-paid funerals Too late, they now go later"

The small loan companies are growing right along with the use of credit They now employ about 55 000 people and have an annual payroll of about 250 million dollars

Our five largest consumer finance companies Household Beneficial Seaboard American Investment Co and Family Finance have a total capital fund of $402 706 510 Household Finance the largest had 2 261 000 loans last year totaling 901 million dollars

Despite some ads that say "low rates" small loan companies usually charge low rates when compared to loan sharks Unlike the loan sharks, small loan companies are bound by law to give a fair deal

(Next—Small loan companies vs the banks)

County Drought Forces Muskrats Into Farm Ponds

Dry weather conditions last summer caused several Westmoreland county streams and forced some muskrats to invade farm ponds according to County Farm Agent John S Thurston

Many pond owners are having more experience with muskrat activity said Thurston Also well engineered dams are not likely to be pierced by muskrats but the dry spell might weaken some dams

The best insurance against too many muskrats is to trap them said Thurston Pond owners and farmers can benefit from the use of muskrat pelts The season opens Nov 30 and extends to Jan 15 1958"

Carlos Garcia Given Unbeatable Lead in Philippine Voting Tuesday

MANILA (UP)—A flood of pro-government votes from the outlying provinces gave President Carlos P. Garcia an apparently unbeatable lead today in his bid for re-election.

But Garcia, the Nationalista Party candidate, failed to carry his running mate. The vice presidency went to the opposition Liberal Party candidate, Diosdado Macapagal.

The ballot counting, complicated by destruction from typhoon Kit, was incomplete but most political observers regarded the preliminary returns as conclusive.

The latest count gave Garcia 382,975 votes to 270,295 for sugar baron Jose Yulo, the Liberal Party candidate; 145,000 for progressive Manuel Manahan, and 72,000 for Sen. Claro Recto, the only candidate who did not campaign on a pro-American platform.

In the vice presidential race, Macapagal had 514,016 votes to 286,744 for Nationalista Jose Laurel Jr., son of the man who was puppet president of the Philippines during the Japanese occupation in World War II.

In contests for eight vacant senatorial seats, the Nationalists were leading for five, the Liberals for two and the Progressives for one.

The typhoon, which swept through heavily populated Central Luzon during the balloting Tuesday, left 19 persons dead. Nine more were killed in violence connected with the election for a total of 28.

Officials called it the "smoothest and safest" election in the 11-year history of Philippine independence.

Garcia, who rose to the presidency last March when a plane crash killed President Ramon Magsaysay, took a beating in Manila but rolled up an ever-widening lead when the "farm vote" started coming in.

Sex in Movies Can Be Okay, Court Rules

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Supreme Court has again declared that sex in movies and books does not necessarily mean obscenity.

The court Tuesday abruptly struck down a ban placed by Chicago Police Commissioner Timothy J. O'Connor on the French film "The Game of Love." O'Connor found the film obscene. He was upheld by Federal District Judge J. S. Perry and the Seventh U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The Supreme Court issued no written opinion on the case Tuesday but only a brief order citing its decision last June dealing with obscene literature. The June opinion—the high court's first clear-cut ruling on obscenity—laid down some general principles for use in such cases.

Apparently the court thought the principles applied to the Chicago situation. However Tuesday's action did not upset the Windy City's censorship ordinance under which O'Connor acted.

Tuesday the court also:

—Rejected the eighth appeal of Morton Sobell, convicted co-conspirator of atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg who were executed in 1953.

—Agreed to review two lower court decisions sharply limiting the Federal Trade Commission's authority to regulate false advertising by insurance companies.

—Refused to intervene in a lower court order granting a new trial to Silvio De Vita, under death sentence for killing a Newark, N.J., policeman.

Mamie to Be 61 Tomorrow; Party Yesterday

WASHINGTON (UP) — Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower is all set to turn 61 Thursday. She has already celebrated.

Washington newswomen gave a pre-birthday party Tuesday for the First Lady. She sipped pink champagne and blew out 16 candles on a birthday cake.

The hostesses said they picked 16 because it is 61 "spelled backwards" and besides, the girls added, "a woman's only as old as she looks and Mamie looks blooming."

While Mamie's birthday party was going on in the main ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel, former President Harry S. Truman was attending a luncheon of the "Truman Committee Reunion" just down the hall. The two did not meet.

Mrs. Eisenhower, wearing a black silk suit, sable stole, and pink fur felt hat with matching gloves, took her turn at the microphone to express thanks for the party.

"It's a good start for 61," she said.

Jordan Appeals to End Hussein Purge

By UNITED PRESS

Jordan appealed to the Arab world today to end the campaign of hostility against King Hussein, but the Egyptian press and radio attacks were more heated than ever.

One Cairo Radio broadcast said it would be impossible for Hussein to keep his throne "in the face of the people's revolt against him." It again accused him of plotting with Israel and the United States.

The Cairo newspaper Al Shaab said today Hussein had transferred two million dollars abroad, presumably as a reserve if he were forced to flee from Jordan. Other newspapers said he had been offered 20 million by the United States to create Arab dissension and that he had received three million from the U.S. Embassy in Amman to strengthen his forces.

The growing propaganda campaign was causing grave concern in London and diplomatic sources said the top could blow off the Jordan powder keg at any time.

However, Washington reports said the State Department was not that gravely concerned and believed the crisis was an artificial one created by Egypt the way the Turco-Syrian crisis was created by Russia.

Syria and Israel meanwhile were becoming embroiled in a new dispute over Israeli irrigation projects near the Syrian border, but relations between Syria and the United States appeared to be improving.

A Damascus dispatch said the United States is about to appoint a new ambassador to Syria to start the two nations toward a major improvement in their relations.

The Damascus dispatch said Syria and the United States had now agreed to patch up their differences.

Fair Prices for Electrical Items Are Demanded

ATLANTIC CITY N. J. (UP) — Mark W. Cresap Jr., executive vice president of the Westinghouse Electric Corp., charged Tuesday that the electrical equipment industry is not receiving fair prices for its products.

Cresap told delegates to the annual meeting of the National Electrical Manufacturers Association that earnings of the industry are running a "poor second" to those of the steel and auto industries.

He predicted a cutback in research and development from a continuation of the decline in earning power unless the industry "faces the facts of life." He disclosed that the stockholders' equity in the industry has declined 25 per cent over the past five years.

He pointed out that with 1952 as a base the steel industry has raised its prices nine per cent more than the electric equipment industry. Automobile prices increased 13 per cent during the same period with prices of home appliances dropping 2 per cent, according to Cresap.

Homestead Man Sent to Prison

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Willie Bird, 29, of Homestead, was sentenced Tuesday to 5 to 10 years in Western Penitentiary for brutal attacks on four women.

Bird drew terms of 3 to 6 years on a rape charge and 1 to 2 years on each of two assault and battery charges. Sentence on four other charges, including robbery, was suspended by visiting Judge Lloyd F. Weaver.

Bird was convicted last June 2 of attacking two women on the street, one in her home and another in a cafeteria. The attacks occurred during a four-month period beginning in October, 1956. One of the women was hospitalized for one month.

Bird's attorney, Blanche M Levy, said she would appeal to a higher court.

Couple from State Facing January Trial

SALEM, Ill. (UP)—A Pennsylvania couple accused in the robbery-slaying of a hitchhiking Indiana Marine today faced a January trial on charges of murder.

Circuit Court Judge Daniel Dailey Tuesday set Jan. 13 as the trial date for Robert and Trudy Jo Baker, of Wormleysburg, Pa. They are accused of slaying Larry M Kirk, Winslow, Ind., last December in a robbery that netted them only a few dollars.

Dailey also set Jan. 6 as the date for a sanity hearing for Baker, and appointed attorneys Oorville Wollard and Robert Washburn, both of Centralia, Ill., to defend the couple.

The trial had been set for July 22, but it was delayed by a series of legal moves and the withdrawal of three court-appointed attorneys by mutual consent.

The defense attorneys had claimed that Trudy, 17, had been denied her rights as a minor, that the judge slated to hear the case was prejudiced, and that residents of the Salem area were prejudiced against the defendants.

Five Die in Fire

MILAN, Italy (UP)— Five persons burned to death Tuesday night at nearby Melegnano when the gas tank of a motorcycle exploded and set fire to a farm house. Authorities said the blast occurred when farmer Angelo Agazzi, 41, used a lighted candle to look into the engine of his cycle. The explosion ignited the house which was gutted. Firemen found five charred bodies in the debris.

Femaleness May Come From Habits of Eating

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UP)—A chemical compound largely responsible for femaleness in women has been isolated from ladino clover in a higher potency than from other sources.

It raises the immediate question of whether females have more or less femaleness because of what they eat—or don't eat.

The compound is estrogen which has a number of variants but all serving the common purpose of enhancing and maintaining femaleness. The new estrogen was isolated and then reduced to a pure substance by a team of scientists in the U. S. Agricultural Research Laboratory in Albany, Calif.

Found in Other Grasses

Estrogens were isolated previously from subterranean and red clover and they are suspected of existing in alfalfa, and in rye, orchard and blue grass From previous discoveries, it had been deduced that the females of animals feeding on such stuff have their functional femaleness affected by the amount of estrogen in their food.

It has been suggested, for instance, that milk cows give more milk but, on the other hand, female sheep are less fertile, since excessive estrogens can submerge other hormones, in this case, the hormone essential for the initiation of pregnancy.

Not only femaleness, but maleness as well For instance, estrogenic meadows, it is suspected by scientists, fatten steers for market faster—by providing the female chemical which dampens male snortiness and tends to push males toward female placidity.

Ladino Clover Potent

So the discovery of the six Albany scientists headed by Dr. E M. Bickoff was not astonishing in itself What was astonishing was the high potency of the ladino clover estrogen as compared to the previously proved and purified estrogen from other clovers

The scientists made their report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science. It fascinates chemists and should fascinate you, too, since it opens up all kinds of possibilities. But lest you think that diet increases or decreases femaleness and maleness in people,

Dividends, Not Bonus Talk of Wall Street

NEW YORK (UP)—In the rosier days of business and markets this time of year was given over to the talk of dividends—regular and extra—bonuses, and reinvestment demand

Today there still is dividend talk but no bonus talk. And Wall Street is wondering hopefully about reinvestment of year-end dividend and interest payments which in other years have lifted the market in December.

The dividend news has made pleasant reading thus far despite gloom talk going on for some time.

Trading in stocks has been large overall and the year may equal 1956, according to current calculations. If that is the case there may be bonuses despite the Wall Street murk of gloom.

The Stock Exchange reported its listed companies paid a record total of more than six billion dollars in dividends in the first nine months of 1957. And 45 per cent of the dividend payers raised their payout.

High dividends plus declining stock prices made for a sharp rise in yields of common stocks

At the end of October, the monthly compilation of H. Hentz & Co. showed that about half the stocks were yielding above five per cent.

There were were 163 issues paying dividends to yield 8 per cent or more, 296 yielding 6 per cent to 8 per cent and 247 yielding 5 to 6 per cent.

The yields ranged over a wide area from 25.57 per cent for Vertientes-Camaguey Sugar to a mere 0.42 per cent for Haveg Industries.

What traders fear when yields go up sharply is that the companies may not be able to maintain dividend payments at their current rates. There have been some reductions and omissions but nowhere near as many as had been predicted.

As in all stock purchasing, the market men point out, careful selections must be made in the dividend-paying stocks to get the ones likely to maintain payments at high rates, ensuring the yields at present prices.

According to the Fitch survey, income liberality is expected to become an increasingly important element in investment appraisals.

That firm notes dividend payments are holding up amazingly well under the strength of earnings levels which continue favorably sustained.

Under a heading, "New Look in Dividend Income," Fitch lists many stocks yielding up to nearly 10 per cent—stocks seen "as possessing the double-barrelled potential of generous income and opportunity for capital gain."

Fleet of Ships Continuing to Search Pacific

The plane vanished Friday with 44 persons aboard while flying from San Francisco to Honolulu. No trace of it has been seen.

The 16 ships were stationed 15 miles apart in a 200-mile line They sailed slowly down the last known route of the missing luxury airliner. At the same time, helicopters and jets from the Philippine Sea flew overhead, their pilots scanning every inch of the ocean for a life raft or for wreckage.

RECORDS COSMIC RAYS—The article accompanying this photo, published Oct. 10 in Soviet Weekly, said the globe contains an automatic camera which records the track of every cosmic particle which passes through it, thus gathering new information every day on what is going on in outer space. The Soviet UN delegation in New York released the issue. The article said further that the sputnik was only a "necessary preliminary to more elaborate space laboratories."

Children Tell Why They Like Lincoln School Best of All

(This is the third in a series of articles prepared by the Monessen Education Association as part of the 37th annual observance of American Education Week. Today's article, written by teacher Marilyn Simpson, relates to the Lincoln elementary school.)

By MARILYN M. SIMPSON

Perhaps the best appraisal of Lincoln school can be supplied by the pupils themselves.

Recently each student at Lincoln was asked to write a brief statement which would express his or her feelings toward the school. A typical statement was selected from each grade.

Here's what the pupils had to say:

First grade: I like Lincoln because I learn a lesson every day.

Second grade: In Lincoln School we work and play. We learn how to read, write, count, and be nice to everyone.

Third grade: My school has taught me first of all how to get along with other children. I have learned to take care of myself coming to school and coming home. I have learned to read, write, and spell from my subjects. They have taught me how to read story books that I could not understand before. I have also learned how to tell time. My school has helped me to follow directions and to obey rules.

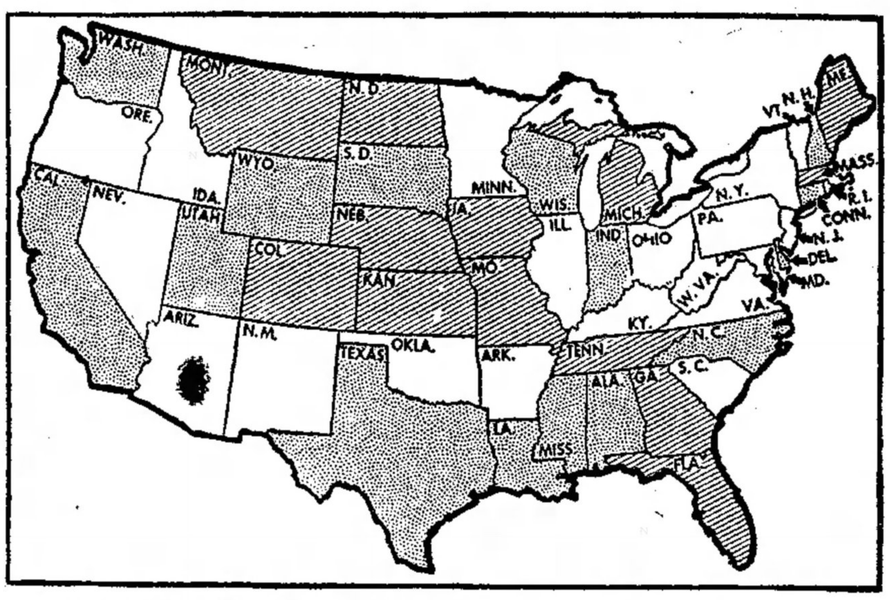
Fourth grade: Ever since I entered Lincoln School four years ago, I have found that I almost like everything about it. The teachers are friendly, cheerful, but strict. They seem to be willing to help their students with any problems which arise. Because the teachers are so willing to help us and answer any questions, I find most of my subjects very enjoyable. My favorite ones are spelling, music, history and arithmetic.

I think that our janitor does a wonderful job of keeping our school very clean and warm. He is also dependable because he is always sure to ring the bell on time, both beginning the school day and ending it. All of the things which I have just written about are some of the reasons why I like Lincoln School.

Fifth Grade: Along with the good progressive industry in the city of Monessen, we at Lincoln School are very industrious and practice good citizenship. Although our industry is on a lower scale, we still produce our finished products, young ladies and gentlemen. Our citizenship program includes learning good work habits, which are very necessary for us to carry on our industry. We have the safety patrol, which helps us to learn responsibility, dependability and other necessary school habits.

We are held responsible for the safety in the school as well as outside the school. In learning good work habits it is necessary for us to depend upon ourselves. We are given certain tasks to perform and we must do them without any outside help. Through many activities, we learn to follow directions and to cooperate with our fellow students.

Cooperation is very necessary for the progress of citizenship and industry. At our school, neat work is stressed both in school work and in any chores which we might have to perform. We at the Lincoln School hope to be a great help to the growth of both industry and citizenship in our community.



FEWER TRAFFIC FATALITIES—States with line shading show a traffic fatality decrease of 10 per cent or better for the first three-quarters of 1957 from 1956, the National Safety Council reports. Iowa leads the nation with a big 26 per cent drop. States with dot shading show a fatality decrease of less than 10 per cent. Others are even or up slightly. Louisville, Ky., shows a whopping 49 per cent drop, Tampa, Fla., 48, and Milwaukee, Wis., 46. Overall decrease is 3 per cent.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Zelfa Mucy, who passed away seven years ago today, November 13, 1950.
Surrounded by friends we are lonesome,
In the midst of our pleasures we're blue,
A smile on our face, still a heartache
Lonesome and grieving for you.
Dear mother, we miss you sadly
And find the time long since you went,
We think of you every day
And try to be brave and content,
But the tears we shed in silence
And breathe a sigh of regret,
We'll remember when the world forgets.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps you near.
Sadly missed by Husband and Children

Superior Court Rejects Drive-in Theater Owner

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The state Superior Court rejected yesterday the contention of a Franklin County drive-in theater operator that the state's Sunday movie law violated his constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech and press.

The appellate court upheld the conviction of Robert J. Grochowiak, operator of the State Line Drive-in Theater in Antrim Twp., for showing a motion picture on Sunday, June 24, 1956, and directed he pay the $50 fine imposed by a justice of the peace.

The theater operator contended in his appeal that the constitutional provisions of free speech and press extend to any form of speech or press, including expression by means of motion pictures. He charged the Sunday movie local option act of 1935 infringed his rights.

In the court's opinion, Judge William H. Hirt pointed out the voters of Antrim Twp. had voted on the question of Sunday movies and a majority were against it.

Hirt said the right of free speech is not absolute, but subject to general and non-discriminatory regulation. He said the banning of Sunday movies was within the scope of the lawful exercise of the state's police power.

Army Engineers Plan Big Flood Control Project

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Rep. Elmer J. Holland (R-Pa.) said today that U.S. Army Engineers have prepared a plan for a 15-million dollar flood control in the ofthit Turtle Creek Valley.

Plans for the project will be submitted to Congress next January. They call for a deepening and widening of the channels of the lower Turtle Creek and of Thompson Run.

"In general," Rep. Holland said, "the sides of the channel of Turtle Creek from its mouth to and including Wall, and the channel bottom upstream of the Westinghouse Flood gates would consist of dumped rock or concrete paving. The channel of Thompson Run would be similarly protected."

Holland said the project will be a "great boon for industry, business and the homeowners in the valley who have suffered so much in the past."

He noted that East Pittsburgh, Wilmerding, Turtle Creek, Westinghouse Electric Corp. and Westinghouse Air Brake Co. have been particularly hard-hit by area floods.

The federal government will assume $13,417,000 of the cost.

Mansfield in Spain

MADRID, Spain (UP) — Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, began an inspection tour of American military bases in Spain today. Mansfield and his wife flew here from Casablanca aboard a U.S. military plane Tuesday night. During their visit through Saturday, the couple will visit their daughter Anne, 23, a Smith College student currently studying at the University of Madrid.

Former Donora Woman First to Create Painting of Red Satellite

A former Donora woman has won the distinction of creating the first artistic impression associated with the Russian earth satellites.

She is Mrs. Sybiel Berkman, artist wife of a Steubenville attorney.

Mrs. Berkman readily admits that her painting was completed before Sputnik I hit the headlines.

"Originally, it was my interpretation of the sparkling of rhinestones," she said. "I was going to call it 'Iridescence'."

Then the first Sputnik came on the space scene and she began to get comments on the resemblance. The painter, too became convinced of the similarity and she finally named it "Sputnik Anticipated."

A graduate of Carnegie Tech's College of Fine Arts, Mrs. Berkman has been gaining artistic recognition independent of her Sputnik achievement.

The Associated American Artists Gallery in New York featured her works exclusively in a two-week exhibit which ended just a few days ago. On display were 16 of her oils, 8 water colors, 8 block prints, and a work of sculpture called "Creation."

Mother First

Until her three sons went away to school, Mrs. Berkman was a mother first and an artist second. Her oldest son, Myles, 21, is now a senior at Harvard. Mrs. Berkman's 18-year-old twins, Stephen and Monroe, are studying at Deerfield Academy.

That leaves just her and her attorney husband, Jack, a native of London, who also is president of television station WSTV, Inc.

Mrs. Berkman disagrees with some critics' insistence that hers are abstract paintings, at least to wooden engravings. She is worksome extent.

"They are real to me," she said, "even though I interpret my subjects as they look to me."

This principle is carried through even in portraits made by the Pennsylvania-born artist.

"I paint people as I see them, Mrs. Berkman said, motioning to two huge portraits which hang in her studio overlooking the Ohio River into the West Virginia Panhandle. "I never flatter them."

'Me and Musial'

She finds the Steubenville area a fertile field in artistic subject material — starting with the front yard of the luxurious 16-room Berkman dwelling in the city's picturesque Sunset Terrace section.

"Workshop of Progress" is the slogan of Steubenville," she said "I have used that theme in a series of prints. I do one a year."

The prints come from linoleum blocks which she cuts out like ing on the seventh of the "Workshop of Progress" series, which depicts scenes around Steubenville.

Which of her works does Mrs. Berkman consider her best?

She prefers "Green Thumb," a portrait of a friend working in a garden.

The public favorites in the New York show seemed to be her "Gems of New York" and "Jewels of New Jersey." Both depict patterns of airport lights.

Mrs. Berkman is a native of Donora, the daughter of a haberdasher.

"Me and Musial," she says jokingly, referring to all-time baseball great Stan Musial, who also hails from Donora.

Mrs. Berkman has a terse appraisal of her own work, but it may be an omen of outstanding achievement still to come.

"I'm still experimenting," she said.

Pittsburgh TV Producer Sues For $2½ Million

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Barry Farnol, 48, Pittsburgh television producer, accused the National Broadcasting Company today of pirating his ideas for the new panel show, "What's It For."

In a Federal Court suit asking $2,500,000 damages, Farnol said he had "conceived, developed and produced" a show by the same name on Aug. 19, 1952.

The suit charged NBC infringed on Farnol's copyright when it introduced "What's It For" with Hal March as moderator last month. The show is based on a four - member panel's efforts to identify the purpose of unusual inventions.

Farnol said he had exhibited his show to agencies and prospective clients in Pittsburgh and New York without success. He said the NBC show was an "intentional duplication" of his idea.

The NBC offering, he said, "copies the name, format, plot, style, twist, substance and in many respects the exact wording" of the show he exhibited.

In addition to the damages, Farnol asked an injunction banning NBC from using the name or material of the show.

Nuclear-treated Golf Balls Can Improve Game

BRECKSVILLE, O. (UP) — Nuclear-treated golf balls could help improve your game, according to a research executive for B. F. Goodrich Co.

They give longer driving distances and have tougher covers than conventional balls now used on the fairway, r. Frank K. Schoenfeld, research vice president for Goodrich, said.

He explained that irradiated golf balls, not yet in commercial production, have been under test since 1954.

They are not radioactive and cannot be distinguished from conventional balls by Geiger counters and other instruments, he explained.

These golf balls require less than two minutes' exposure to gamma rays of high intensity and energy to increase their potential distance, and to improve cut and scuff resistance, r. Schoenfeld said.

Credit Company Wants Proceeds

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A credit company has asked the state Superior Court to award it the proceeds from an Erie County sheriff's sale of two trucks it financed for Thomas McDivitt, Erie, in 1955.

The Universal CIT Credit Corp. contended it had first claim to the $2,725 realized from the sale last year. The firm said McDivitt still owed $6,314 on the trucks when they were seized in 1955 by the Erie sheriff for non-payment of a $1,020 overloading fine at Corry.

The sheriff sale netted $2,725 and $292 was paid for tire payments due and the balance for fines. CIT said it had first claim because it had the prior encumbrance on the trucks.

Your Health—

What You Can Expect In Hospital

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Sooner or later, its probable that you, or some member of your household, will have to go to a hospital. Perhaps it will be only a short stay for an examination. Maybe it will be for surgery or a serious illness.

No matter what the reason it is apt to be an unnerving experience for some people. Let me urge you to use a little common sense to make your stay as pleasant as possible.

Our hospitals are crowded and, for the most part, understaffed these days. Because of this, it is more important than ever that all patients be understanding and as friendly as possible.

First, get to the hospital on time. Generally, your doctor will make the arrangements for your admittance. Be sure to ask him when you are to check in, then get there when you are supposed to.

Take along only what you will need: a toothbrush, toothpaste, comb, robe, slippers and maybe reading and writing materials.

You will be only one of many patients, so you'll have to accept the regimentation that is necessary in hospital routine. This doesn't mean you must do everything you are told without asking any questions.

Often you'll be able to cooperate more fully if you know just why you are required to take some medication or to do something in particular. Doctors and nurses are busy, of course, but they will be happy to explain these things to you.

Don't be too critical. Staff shortages often cause inconvenience to individual patients. Maybe your meals will be a little late. Maybe the attendants will be a little slow in bringing you what you have requested. Be understanding. You must realize that the nurses will do all they can for you and in a kindly way, too.

On the other hand, don't fail to report any apparent lack of attention to your physician when he comes to check your condition. If you really have a just complaint, your doctor will see that it is carried to the proper hospital authorities.

Question and Answer

R.W.: I have heard that when a person has multiple sclerosis, he has difficulty in talking. Is this true?

Answer: In some cases, the person may have a speech difficulty. He may enunciate his words slowly and have a tendency to hesitate at the beginning of a word or syllable.

Mentally defective children are destroyed by many primitive peoples. It took the civilized world until about the 16th century before methods were sought to train and care for the feeble-minded.

From Broadway—

Villain Opposed to Too Many Villains

By RON BURTON

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Motion picture heavy Brad Dexter says there's only one thing wrong with the film villain business — sometimes there are too many villains in one picture.

He knows that often there is the top louse who in turn is assisted by his henchmen, cohorts, cronies or sub-louse. This means there usually must be more than one rat per movie pack. Therefore, up until now he believed that the more villains, the better.

However, now he's the only louse in "Run Silent, Run Deep", and he's having a wonderful time.

"This way I'll stand out from the rest of the guys — the good guys," he explained. "The picture stars Clark Gable and Burt Lancaster and concerns submarine warfare in World War II. It's pretty well understood that audiences remember the cads lots longer than they do the little gentlemen.

"The point is that in this picture I'm the only rat — there's no one else in my group, and I'll get all the villains' shares of attention to myself. You bet I'm happy about it."

A Future Hero?

Dexter can curl his lip into a fine sneer, but he wasn't always thinking along such lines. Some friends of his thought he should be in the movies and fixed things up for him — to a certain extent. They got him on the set, but the only available role was a heavy. He took it.

And that's why he's been sneering his way through one rough, mean guy part after another.

"Lots of people are surprised when, after seeing me in movies, they meet me and discover I'm almost modest — for an actor — love children and animals and have a generally even disposition," he said.

Dexter doesn't think that once a heavy is set in that classification he has to stay there. Gable, Humphrey Bogart, Cary Grant and George Raft all began as heavies, he pointed out.

"I don't know what's behind this — if anything — but apparently if you kick women around enough they'll come to love you," he said. "This means that eventually I may become a leading man."

TV Columnist Sent to Jail For 10 Days

NEW YORK (UP)—Marie Torre, television columnist for the New York Herald Tribune, was cited for contempt and sentenced to 10 days in jail today.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan directed Miss Torre to reveal the CBS executive who supplied her with information on an article she wrote on actress Judy Garland.

Miss Torre "respectfully refused" to disclose the name of the executive.

The court then cited Miss Torre for criminal contempt but released her in the custody of Matthias Correa, her attorney, pending an appeal.

The judge conceded that there was "a substantial question of law" and one never decided by a high federal court as to whether a reporter may withhold the source for a published story.

Miss Torre was subpenaed as a witness in a pre-trial examination in a suit brought by Miss Garland for more than one million dollars against CBS, alleging breach of contract and libel.

Neither she nor the Herald Tribune are a party to the action.

World of TV—

Keel on His Own This Year

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP)—Howard Keel, snug in the cotton - candy bosom of Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer for nine years, decided to flutter out on his own this year. He's found free flight pretty heady.

"For the past couple of years, I've had one big goal—to bust out of MGM," baritoned Keel. "During the past three years, you know how many pictures I made for them? One. 'Kismet.' And it was a bomb.

"Oh, sure, the money was good, but let me tell you, it's not particularly good for your mental health or your ambition to spend three years on your seat.

"TV? Sure, I'd get offers. Plenty of them. But Metro wouldn't let me do any except for a couple of shows in Britain and one Ed Sullivan show. The Sullivan show was back in 1954, I think, and the only reason they let me do that was to plug a picture."

Making Up Lost Time

Keel is scrambling to make up for lost time. He did a Dinah Shore TV show a couple of weeks back and this Sunday will appear on the General Motors 50th anniversary spec on NBC-TV. He's planning a nation-wide concert tour for 1958 and there's also a good chance he may take a concert swing through the Middle East.

Six-foot-four, Keel hails from Gillespie, Ill. Before Metro snared him in 1948, he had boomed his way through such legit musicals as "Carousel" and "Oklahoma." His 17 pictures for MGM include "Annie Get Your Gun," "Kiss Me, Kate" and 'Seven Brides For Seven Brothers."

"I am a little cautious about getting my feet too wet in TV," admitted Keel. "You have to watch out for TV a little, particularly when they throw that weekly series business at you.

"Metro asked me to play the lead in their TV 'Thin Man' series, but I turned it down. I think if you own a series, you can make a pot of money, but you're not going to make any money doing a TV series for an outfit like MGM.

Asked To Do MGM Series

"And let's say the 'Thin Man' is a success. What happens? I'll tell you, and you wind up as the 'Thin Man.' That's the only way anybody ever thinks of you from then on. You're stuck with the tag."

Keel, married and the father of three youngsters, believes a performer can damage his future by tying himself too firmly to any single organization.

"I can see the studio's point of view in tying up a performer. They help build a career and they want a stake in it. The networks tie up people the same way," said Keel.

"But a performer can't stand that sacrifice of being typed in one kind of job. There's no sense of accomplishment—and that's the only reason for being in show business."

Keel, 38, is aware that flying on his own involves hazards. "But there is an old saying of Shakespeare—'There's much lost for the fear of trying,'" he said. "Some time in your life, you have to say the hell with security and take a flyer. You can't just sit around. One thing I'm sure of—my sitting days are over."

New Tax Law Is Explained

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Internal Revenue Service said today a new expense account question on income tax forms is a warning to all taxpayers—fat cats and thin.

It amounts to this: The government wants without fail detailed information on all expense accounts.

The Internal Revenue disclosed last week it has inserted the expense account item—line 6A—in the 1957 personal income tax blanks—the ones that are due by next April 15.

It calls for stating on the front of the blank the size of any taxpayer's expense account — the amount if any he received from his employer for such diverse items as taxi fares and convention trips. A full itemized explanation must be attached as a separate sheet.

Earlier Forms Confusing

Confusion resulted from early interpretations. Whom does line 6A effect? Is the government opening an attack on expense accounts—considered by some as an escape loophole from high income taxes?

Here, from top revenue officials, is the meaning of 6A:

—Internal Revenue is tightening its standing regulation that expense accounts must be declared.

—Line 6A is aimed primarily at taxpayers with bulgingly - suspicious expense accounts. But it also is aimed at the little guy with a $200 annual expense account that he never bothered to report.

—Everyone receiving an expense account, no matter how small, will have to keep a record of it and report it as they should have in the past.

Revenue officials said failure of many taxpayers to comply with standing regulations on expense accounts brought on line 6A.

Instructions for old tax forms said: Expense accounts receipts from employers should be added to wages; legitimate expenses for which the payments were made should be subtracted from wages; and the result should be entered as the taxpayer's income.

Revenue officials said many taxpayers whose receipts and allowable expenses cancelled each other simply skipped the whole thing.

Other taxpayers omitted the "detailed statements" or submitted sketchy ones.

Laika Studies Prove Valuable, Pravda Claims

MOSCOW (UP)—The Communist newspaper Pravda said today studies of the space dog Laika had proven valuable in the studies of the effects of space travel on humans. It also disclosed that Sputnik II probably was accompanied on its orbit by a protective cone.

The Pravda article which disclosed new facts about the space traveling dog said the animal "endured well" the physical problems it was subjected to in Sputnik II.

Although there has been no official announcement, it was believed Laika died several days ago aboard the earth satellite. Pravda said today the "state of the animal was satisfactory throughout the experiment."

It pointed out that by sending the little dog up in Sputnik, Russian scientists were able to gather information on "the state of a living organism in conditions of weightlessness which continued for several days."

Data Will Be Valuable

"It goes without saying that the conducted observations are a considerable contribution to future interplanetary flights and will provide a basis for the invention of means of ensuring the safe travel of human beings in cosmic space," Pravda said.

The article also gave a hint as to what the object is that some scientists reported was following Sputnik II.

It said the satellite itself, which is the last stage of a "multi-stage rocket," was protected "from aerodynamic and thermal influence by a special protective cone..." It said the cone was jettisoned after the rocket's last stage was put into the orbit."

It said Sputnik II has a "pressurized cabin containing the experimental animal" and that the cylindrical cabin contains food and air-conditioning system consisting of a regeneration installation and a temperature control device.

The cabinet also contained instruments for registering the pulse, respiration and blood pressure of the dog, equipment for taking electrocardiograms, and sensitive elements for measuring several parametres characterizing the conditions in the cabin (temperature, pressure etc.)"

It added that the second Sputnik 'has a special frame with instruments to study the sun's radiation in the ultraviolet and roentgen bands of the spectrum, a spherical container with transmitters and other equipment..."

"The final analyses of the materials received from radio observations will yield valuable information about the ionization properties of the upper layers of the ionosphere, and the absorption and propagation of radio waves," Pravda said.

Carnegie Tech in Campaign for Funds

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Carnegie Institute of Technology today announced that $6,735,406 has been subscribed to date toward its $24,350,000 building and development fund goal.
